Duo nabbed with lots of meth behind CHS

Suspects fled from police; both in jail on cash bonds

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

Corbin Police say officers were on routine patrol near Corbin High School Saturday when they discovered a duo with a large amount of methamphetamine. Both were taken into custody after a chase with authorities.

Police arrested 29-year-old David L. Allen of Woodbine and 28-year-old Megan Patterson of Corbin.

According to Officer Ken Proffitt, the situation began just after 9 p.m. when he noticed a suspicious vehicle parked behind the school and an individual, later identified as Allen, standing next to it.

As Proffitt approached and began speaking with Allen, he stated Allen appeared nervous and his reasons for being at the school were not making sense. In addition, Proffitt stated there was a woman's purse in the front seat of the vehicle.

Proffitt stated that Allen kept placing his hands in his pockets despite repeated warning not to do so.

"Officer asked violator if he had any weapons or anything illegal on his person and he reported no," Proffitt stated, noting when he went to pat Allen down for weapons, Allen ran from the scene.

Proffitt stated that Allen appeared to throw items to the ground as he ran.

Proffitt deployed his Tazer to end the pursuit, but as he was attempting to secure Allen in handcuffs, he stated Allen continued to pull his hands away and resist.

As he secured Allen, Proffitt stated that he observed Patterson attempting to hide behind a nearby tree and she was taken into custody.

Proffitt stated that the items Allen discarded included

Keavy woman allegedly stabs brother Tuesday

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Keavy woman is facing an assault charge for allegedly stabbing her brother Tuesday morning and her mother is facing charges that she tried to cover it up.

Laurel County Sheriff John Root said 25-year-old Dustin Napier is facing one count of second-degree assault in connection with the incident.

According to Deputy Gilbert Acciardo, the department's public affairs officer, deputies were called to the scene on Baker Ridge Road about 3:30 a.m. where Napier and her brother had allegedly gotten into an argument that turned physical.

As a result, Napier's brother suffered a single puncture wound

Williamsburg woman wins top award in IKEA recipe contest

■ By Trent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

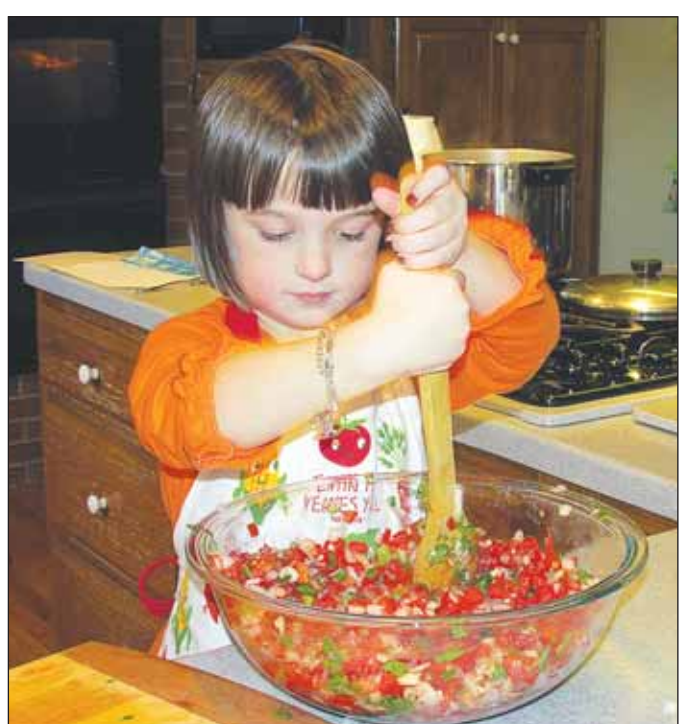

A Williamsburg woman is one of three grand prize winners in a contest sponsored by international home furnishings giant IKEA to celebrate how food connects people.

Carol Powell said the recipe for "The Powell Family Homegrown Salsa" was concocted about a decade ago with ingredients grown in the family garden. What began as a solution to an overflowing crop of homegrown Roma tomatoes has resulted in a cherished recipe and family tradition — picking and dicing veggies and canning a deliciously fresh homegrown salsa, perfect for sharing at summertime get-togethers.

And the recipe earned her top honors in the "Social Summer — Picnics, Cookouts, Reunions & More" category of the contest.

Powell said she was sort of surprised when she got the email notification saying she'd won.

W'burg homeless shelter now closed to everyone, director says

Will reopen after structural changes to the facility

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

One week after announcing they would no longer be accepting women, officials at the Williamsburg homeless shelter have announced the shelter will also be closed to men, but said all will be welcome back following some structural changes to the facility.

Bill Woodward, director/case manager of Emergency Christian Ministries, said changes to the facility include moving the men's dorm and clothing room, creating a new doorway and partitions inside and outside the building.

The changes are necessary following an increase of incidents of male and female residents attempting to sneak into one another's rooms.

"It seems that in the last year things have just gotten out of hand," Woodward noted. "We want to do good. We are Christian-oriented. Of course, we can't have any fornication or adultery going on up here."

"I'm trying to help people and will help people," Woodward added. "It's just a little dilemma," he

Whitley Sheriff's Dept. begins drug tip hotline

If you are suspected drug dealers in your neighborhood, you now have two ways to anonymously report them to the Whitley County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Colan Harrell announced Friday afternoon that his department now has a drug tip line and there is a link on the sheriff's department website where tips can be left.

The drug tip line phone number is (606) 280-9115.

"Citizens who call this number will get an automated message where they may leave as much detailed information as possible. The information left will go directly to Narcotics Detective Derek Eubanks. If you wish to speak with Detective Eubanks to provide further information, please leave your name and number on the tip line and he will return your call," Harrell said in a release.

Citizens can also visit the sheriff's department website at www.wcsdky.us and click the blue link, "Report Drug Activity" to leave an anonymous tip.

The website submissions also go directly to Eubanks.

Harrell said he hopes the new drug tip line and new drug submission form will help citizens, who wish to report drug crimes anonymously, feel more comfortable in doing so because drug tips from citizens often lead to arrests.

Harrell said he appreciates the community for taking a stand against drugs and helping his department with any information they may have concerning crimes in our community.

There is also a link on the sheriff's department website to a new form "Extra Patrol Requests."

"Citizens may submit this form if they wish to have extra deputy patrol in their neighborhood or if you plan to be out of town and would like deputies to patrol by your home during that time. Please provide as much detail as possible, along with anyone who would have permission to be at the home during the times you will be out of town," Harrell noted.

450 kids getting Christmas backpacks during giveaway at Mt. Ash Baptist Church Saturday

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Georgia mission group, which is working in conjunction with Mountain Ash Baptist Church, is hoping to give away about 450 “Backpacks for Christmas” to children ages two through 14 at Mountain Ash church Saturday afternoon.

The backpacks will be full of items to make Christmas “very special” for the children.

In addition, jackets, coats, sweaters, other clothing and about 100 blankets will also be given out to those in attendance.

The event will start at 3 p.m. Saturday at Mountain Ash Baptist Church, which is located about seven miles south of Williamsburg off US25W at 390 Buck Creek Road.

Mountain Ash Pastor Billy Carpenter said the program would begin at 3 p.m. with a time of fellowship and sharing.

“We will have a little service with them and share the Christmas story and tell them about the reason for giving and the greatest gift that was ever given,” Carpenter said.

“They will have the opportunity to get more than just a small backpack or some clothing when they come. They might get the gift that keeps on giving of eternal life. The one Jesus brought us.”

Curt Hampton, director of missions for the Merritt-Summit Hill Baptist Association, said that the 37 churches in the association, which are from South Central Georgia, have been gathering up backpacks full of supplies for the last three years as part of the “Backpacks for Appalachia” program through Appalachian Regional Ministries.

“We had been carrying ours to the Georgia Baptist Convention and dropping them off,” Hampton said. “This year we decided we would just take them and deliver them ourselves. We adopted Mountain Ash and the Williamsburg area.”

Over 20 volunteers from Georgia will be loading the backpacks up in vehicles Wednesday, and hitting the road Friday morning for a five and one-half to seven-hour drive to Williamsburg depending on where they are coming from.

The group will spend the night in Williamsburg Friday and Saturday nights, and help distribute the backpacks to children Saturday. Then they will attend church at Mt. Ash Sunday morning before heading home.

“We are looking forward to it. We are excited about coming,”

Hampton said. “This is just a mission effort that our people got excited about.”

Carpenter noted that there are still numerous people in southern Whitley County who live in poverty.

“All we want to do is to help,” Carpenter noted. “I believe Christians and churches ought to be giving if they are not I just don’t think we are doing what we’re supposed to do as Christians.”

Refreshments will be served during the event Saturday.

For more information about the event, contact Mountain Ash Baptist Church at 786-4878.

‘Please call the police,’ abuse victim writes on doctor’s form

■ By Dean Manning

dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

Corbin Police say officers spent more than 45 minutes Thursday night searching for a suspect in a rolling domestic dispute that turned physical.

Officer John Hill stated that police were called to the Baptist Health Corbin campus about 2:30 p.m. in response to a complaint that 35-year-old John J. Hart had been beating his wife while driving down the road and that there was a small child in the truck witnessing the incident.

“Got in the area to locate violator and Corbin pediatrics called and reported that Crystal G. Hart signed in to have her daughter seen and above her name wrote, ‘Please call the police,’” Hill stated in the arrest citation.

When officers arrived on the scene, Hill stated they witnessed the suspect, later identified as John Hart, run out of the building and across the parking lot to a nearby car lot.

Hill, along with Corbin Police Col. David Maiden, continued the search for Hill, finding him hiding in some nearby brush.

“The violator had taken his flannel shirt off in hopes of us not seeing him,” Hill stated.

In an interview with police, Crystal Hart reported that her husband had thrown a phone and hit her in the face and used his elbow to hit her in the neck and head, before finally pulling out a razor knife and threatening to kill her. When questioned about the incident, Hill stated that John Hart admitted that he had been drinking throughout the day.

Hill added that both he and Maiden suffered damage to their uniforms as a result of the search.

John Hart was charged with fourth-degree assault — minor injury, first-degree fleeing or evading police — on foot, third-degree terroristic threatening, second-degree wanton endangerment, third-degree criminal mischief, endangering the welfare of a minor and alcohol intoxication in a public place and lodged in the Whitley County Detention Center.

John Hart is being held on a $10,000 cash bond.

Corbin woman found naked in parking lot

Offers no explanation for her state of undress, police say

■ By Dean Manning

dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

Laurel County Sheriff’s deputies say a Corbin woman did not offer any explanation for why she was found naked in the parking lot of a local hotel Monday afternoon.

Deputies arrested 21-year-old Jessica Birchfield on one count of indecent exposure.

According to Sheriff John Root deputies were called to the scene of the unnamed hotel about 3:30 p.m.

“When deputies arrived at the location of the complaint, they observed a female subject jumping up and down and running around in the parking lot,” Root stated.

Deputies had the subject put her clothes back on, adding she appeared to be under the influence of drugs.

Deputy Gilbert Acciardo, the department’s public affairs officer, said it is unknown whether Birchfield was a guest at the hotel.

Birchfield was charged with first-degree indecent exposure — second offense within three years, public intoxication — controlled substance and second-degree disorderly conduct and lodged in the Laurel County Detention Center.

W’burg decorating contest winners announced

■ By Dean Manning

Bragging rights have officially been determined for the best Christmas decorations in Williamsburg.

Mayor Roddy Harrison announced the winners of the 11th Annual Christmas in a Small Town Decorating Contest during the Christmas celebration at Bill Woods Park Saturday evening after the Christmas parade.

In the business division, Merry’s Flower Shop won in the traditional category. This is the third time in four years that Merry’s Flower Shop has won in this category. Bob and Sue Byrd of Byrd CPA won the award in the modern traditional category. Last year they took home the top honors in the traditional category.

In the residential division,

Bill and Vickie Hollen won in the traditional category for the third year. In the modern traditional category, Lana Perkins won. She tied for the award last year.

In the Bling, Bling category, Randy Ball and Carol Ball won for the third year in a row. Melissa and Cecil Foley won the award for best-decorated door.

For the fourth straight year, Cardinal Heights won the award for best-decorated neighborhood.

The University of the Cumberlands won the Spirit of Christmas Award.

In addition to all-important bragging rights until next year, the winners also received a yard sign.

In addition, Mt. Ash Baptist Church was the winner of the float contest in the Feels like Home Christmas Parade Saturday.

Justice: Different strokes for different folks

Despite very nice sounding ideas to the contrary, we all have pretty much come to realize several things when it comes to our legal system.

Justice is not blind.

You get as much of it as you can purchase.

Who you are, and who you know, matters. A lot!

Let's take two recent cases of sexual abuse we've covered in this newspaper as instructive examples.

Remember the one about the ex-assistant football coach at Williamsburg High School who sexually abused a student? One of the details we reported about in that case was the fact that administrators for the school district knew something inappropriate had happened, but failed to make any sort of timely report to police. Instead, they opted to simply ban the coach from campus.

Turns out, Kentucky law pretty much requires that police be notified by anyone who has knowledge that a child has been abused or neglected. Period. Not to do so is a crime that should be prosecuted.

Some administrators could have been in deep ... well ... you know what.

But, it was decided instead that a little training was more in order. Just a session or two to refresh everyone on the law, have a nice lunch; perhaps a breezy, very laid-back question-and-answer session, I'd guess.

Problem solved. All is well.

Now compare that with a story we had on our front page just last week about a girl that was sexually abused here in Whitley County. A man was arrested for the alleged crime.

But two other women, one the girl's mother, were also taken into custody

TRENT KNUCKLES

for failing to report the abuse.

What they did was inexcusable. It violated the law.

We know this because Whitley County Sheriff Colan Harrell said so, and provided a very stern and righteous quote in the story regarding their failure. The law is "very clear," he said. Reporting it is not only the correct and legal thing to do, but we all have a "moral obligation" to do so.

I agree with him.

But there's a problem.

One group of people who failed to report, school system administrators, were mildly chastised and were offered training.

The other group, conversely, wasn't among the who's who in town. Nope, just regular, ordinary people. Were they offered training? Not a chance! They are getting nailed with the hammer of justice right between the eyes.

Maybe they deserve it.

But, shouldn't the law be applied consistently?

SOME OTHER STUFF

- Citizens in the cities of Barbourville and London will soon vote on whether they want to allow expanded alcohol sales.

Corbin has enjoyed three solid, uninhibited years of tax and fee collections from liquor stores in our city. It adds up to over $750,000 annually.

These votes are direct threats to that largesse.

If Londoners and Barbourvillians wise up this time around, it could present Corbin with another budget shortfall. Flanked on the north and east by towns doing the same thing will definitely cut into the liquor business here. It doesn't take a genius economist to figure that one out.

I hope we have a budgetary backup plan.

Hammond has not forgotten his KY roots

A few years back I visited nationally known sportscaster Tom Hammond at his home in Lexington to write a story on him and former Kentucky basketball star Larry Conley.

Hammond and Conley had worked together for years broadcasting basketball, and a statewide magazine wanted a cover story on their careers. It worked out for all of us.

Last month when I saw Hammond working the Breeders Cup at Keeneland it reminded me of what role the racetrack had played in his rise to legendary stature in sports broadcasting.

"I've worked every Breeders Cup since 1984 for NBC, 28 out of the last 32," he offered. "ESPN had the contract the other four years."

The return to Lexington was special.

"This is it's roots," he said of the Breeders Cup. "Central Kentucky horseman John Gaines thought up the concept and enlisted the support of fellow horsemen, so it was in Lexington that the whole idea originated."

According to Hammond the conventional wisdom had been that Keeneland was too small to host the Breeders Cup. "But $5 million dollars worth of enhancements and a lot of planning made it possible," he added. "Given my history with Keeneland and the Breeders Cup, the whole experience had great meaning for me."

The young man his friends called Tommy, had been a so-so basketball and football player at Lexington Lafayette High, and realized early on his future had to begin in the classroom. Enrolling at the University of Kentucky he concentrated on getting a degree in animal science. Summers were spent working at race tracks such as Saratoga in New York and Belmont in Baltimore, doing pedigree research for noted horseman Tom Gentry, all the while learning more and more about horses and racetracks. Nowhere did his budding resume show any broadcast journalism classes.

"I became a broadcaster by accident. My first love was horses," says Hammond.

A friend asked him to fill in one day at a local radio station, WVLK, by reading the Keeneland race results.

"I had no idea I wanted to be a broadcaster" he recalls. "I was sort of shy, but that opportunity turned out to be a big break."

The break turned into a 15 minute, six-day-a-week gig with a $35 weekly paycheck.

Not long after, television followed at a Lexington station where Hammond was a one man sports department, shooting film, editing, writing copy and reporting.

Hammond caught another flyer when he was asked to accompany NBC sportscaster Dick Enberg to see Secretariat at Claiborne Farm in nearby Paris.

"My ticket to network was horse racing," he said.

"The first Breeders Cup I did was in 1984. They needed someone who could help fill four hours of time, so I worked with Enberg as the horse expert."

His animal science degree, experience in horse auctions, and promotion work at Keeneland all had helped him reach another level of his profession.

A few years earlier TVS had started a prime time Southeastern Conference basketball package, and Hammond wanted to be their play-by-play guy.

"I really wanted to do this," he said. "Joe B. (Hall),

Lions Club lists Christmas Basket donors; still accepting donations

To the Editor:

The Corbin Lions Club continues to accept donations toward our annual Christmas Basket Program.

This is our 66th consecutive year of providing food baskets to local families during the Christmas season. Beginning with five baskets in 1949, we have delivered hundreds of baskets each year. Both Lions Club members and volunteers deliver these baskets on Christmas Eve morning.

Each basket consists of enough food for a wonderful Christmas meal with plenty of leftovers. There are canned vegetables, fresh produce, flour, milk, Pepsi, bread, canned ham, and breakfast foods.

To purchase 228 baskets, we have set a monetary goal of $15,000. This goal can only be met with the generosity of community members and businesses. Donations can be mailed to PO Box 365, Corbin, KY 40702.

To date, the club has received $7,405 in donations and wishes to thank the following individuals and organizations for their donations:

Whitley BOE votes to change type of treatment system at Whitley North

■ By Mark White
mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

Sometimes you have to spend money in the short term to save money in the long term. This is what the Whitley County Board of Education is hoping to do with replacement of a wastewater treatment system at Whitley North Elementary School next year.

During a special called meeting Thursday, the board took the first steps towards replacing the current Whitley North treatment plant with a leach field system.

It is projected to cost about $60,000 to build a new leach field system at the school opposed to about $250,000 to build a new treatment plant.

The change to a leach field system will save the district about $9,000 annually.

Director of Facilities John Siler told the board that the current system at Whitley North is over 20 years old and needs replacing, and that regulations on treatment plants are getting tighter.

Whitley County Superintendent Scott Paul said that the district is already using a leach field system at Whitley East Elementary School and at the recently built Pleasant View Elementary School.

The district still has treatment plants at two other schools, Oak Grove and Boston Elementary School.

Paul said he is hoping that Corbin will eventually extend sewer lines down Cumberland Falls Highway and that Oak Grove will be able to switch to that system at some point.

Boston Elementary School is another story. Paul said the school district doesn't own enough land there to build a leach field system.

During Thursday's meeting, which was held in place of the board's regular monthly meeting, the board also approved a resolution concerning the Kentucky Teacher's Retirement System (KTRS) that seeks measures which would ensure the sustainability of the system.

Deputy Superintendent Paula Trickett said the current system has a negative cash flow situation, and is projected to payout $750 million this year with that amount going up $100 million annually.

Because of the cash flow inversion, the system has been forced in recent years to sell off high-performing assets in order to pay expenses.

Paul noted that he recently attended a hearing on the system and that everything from switching to a 401(K) style system to issuing bonds to cover the cost of the system had been proposed.

Trickett said that a solution will probably require both a bond issue to provide the system with more cash and a change in benefits for current or future hires.

Currently, retiring teachers with unused sick leave can cash those days in when they retire for 30 percent of their value, which this sum counting towards their annual salary in their last year of employment.

Trickett said there is a proposal that would do away with the provision of counting the unused sick days towards increasing your final year's salary, and possibly make it a service credit instead.

This might not happen though.

"They felt like if they did that change there would be a mass exodus with a lot of retirees hitting the system at once," Trickett added.

She also warned some of the possible changes may include decreasing the annual cost of living adjustment for retirees from 1.5 percent annually to 1 percent or maybe even not allowing a cost of living adjustment until retirees reach age 65.

"The members of the Whitley County Board of Education wish to support Kentucky's educators in their efforts to secure a viable funding plan that will ensure the KTRS pension system will provide for teachers in their retirement years," the resolution read in part.

Board member J.E. Jones noted that this is a simple solution to fully funding the retirement system.

"All you have to do is raise taxes," he said with a smile.

"You going to make the motion?" fellow board member Delmar Mahan asked laughingly.

"No," Jones replied.

In other business, the board:

- Heard a presentation from Pleasant View Elementary School first grade students in Marie Carr's class, who played Christmas carols for the board using bells.

- Approved a bid from C&T Design for a combination steamer and oven.

- Heard and saw presentations of consolidated school improvement plans from various schools and departments prior to the start of Thursday's meeting.

Louisville couple jailed in W'burg

A Louisville woman's potential shoplifting charge was upgraded to robbery after she allegedly assaulted a Walmart employee who attempted to stop her at the door with two shopping carts full of stolen merchandise Sunday night.

Fifty-two-year-old Jana L. Faust has been charged with second-degree robbery resisting arrest and second-degree disorderly conduct.

Williamsburg police were called to the store about 6:50 p.m.

According to Officer Ashley Wampler, the door greeter had attempted to stop Faust after she refused to produce a receipt for more than $1,000 worth of merchandise in the two carts.

After reviewing video surveillance, Wampler stated that she informed Faust that she was under arrest and asked her to turn around to be placed in hand cuffs.

"Subject pulled away screaming she was not going to jail," Wampler stated.

After securing Faust in handcuffs, Wampler stated the woman told her that her husband was waiting in the car, identifying him as, "Casey Moses."

Williamsburg Police Officer Elijah Hunter went to the vehicle and made contact with the driver. The driver reportedly could not find his identification. When Hunter asked the man to exit the vehicle, he reported seeing a plastic baggie next to the driver's seat containing what appeared to be white capsules. The man gave consent to search and Hunter reported finding a second baggie in the passenger side floor board containing a white crystal substance.

Faust was charged with second-degree robbery, resisting arrest, second-degree disorderly conduct, and first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance.

The man initially identified himself as Benjamin Lewallen. However, through fingerprints, the subject was identified as Charles Richard Cavins, 58, of Louisville.

Cavins was charged with first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance – methamphetamine, giving an officer a false name or address, first-degree possession of a controlled substance and parole violation.

Cavins is being held without bond in the Whitley County Detention Center.

Faust's bond has been set at $50,000 cash.

Companies already inquiring about new spec. building, Carpenter says

W'burg Kiwanis Club gets economic development update

■ By Mark White
mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

Work to start production at the new Kowa manufacturing facility in Corbin is moving ahead of schedule, Corbin Economic Development Director Bruce Carpenter told the Williamsburg Kiwanis Club Thursday.

Carpenter, who is also the Southern Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Director, was the keynote speaker during Thursday's regular meeting and gave the club updates on various projects currently underway in and around Corbin.

Carpenter said Kowa's production was originally projected to start in February but looks like it will start up in January instead.

"They are doing test runs now on the equipment and test production for the parts," Carpenter said. "They do a very specialized plating of automotive parts on fuel lines. It is electrolysis nickel plating."

The company currently employs 10 people and hopes to have 30 - 40 employees after full production starts.

"They have 13 other companies in Japan and China. This is their first presence ever in North America. It is very exciting," Carpenter noted. "I am hoping down the road that through some expansion and other things they do they will continue to grow here. We certainly look forward to having them here and appreciate them locating in our six-county regional park."

Kowa is located in a 54,000 square-foot spec. building that is located in the regional industrial park.

Carpenter said construction is currently underway for a new 58,000-square foot spec. building at the six-county regional park that could almost be doubled with an expansion.

"I have already had a couple of folks that have inquired about that building," Carpenter said. "We plan on having that building finished sometime in the spring, weather permitted. We are already marketing that building."

Corbin Economic Development Director Bruce Carpenter was the keynote speaker during the Williamsburg Kiwanis Club meeting, which was held Thursday at the Cumberland Inn.

Grace Community Healthcare is in the process of closing on land in the regional park and plans to build a nearly $5 million medical facility starting in the spring.

During his address, Carpenter also gave the Kiwanis club a brief update on proposed quarter-horse racetrack, Cumberland Run, that Keeneland plans to build in Corbin in the Tri-County Industrial Park.

"I feel very comfortable that project is moving forward and will continue to move forward," he added.

Cumberland Run is a $30 million project that will employ about 125 to 150 people year round in addition to some seasonal jobs.

The project has been delayed due an injunction filed against the Kentucky Horse Racing Commission by Floyd County, which hopes to force Keeneland to buy the racing license for a defunct racetrack there, instead of seeking a previously unused license.

The Floyd County track, Thunder Ridge, still has a $2.2 million unpaid bond that was used to build the track.

Carpenter also briefly spoke about the work ethic program that the chamber of commerce started five years ago.

The program is currently mandatory in the Corbin and Williamsburg school districts starting in the sophomore year of high school.

Now, any student graduating from either Corbin or Williamsburg with a work ethic program certification, will receive a $1,000 scholarship from the University of the Cumberlands or Eastern Kentucky University if they chose to attend college at either of these institutions of higher learning.

Carpenter said chamber officials are hoping to expand the program into the Whitley County and Knox County school districts in the not too distant future.

"Something our chamber has been really focused on the last several years is educating the workforce," he added. "It is starting hopefully to sink in or they realize the importance of soft skills, like being on time for job, how to do an interview, how to fill out an application and so forth.

"It is the things above and beyond the curriculum of what the schools teach that is so vital to all of us. It has been a great program."

Towards the close of Thursday's meeting, Carpenter fielded a question from the audience about why Exit 29 in Corbin hasn't been developed faster.

"Honestly, alcohol," Carpenter responded. "I've literally had site consultants and developers say to me as soon as that comes into the city or alcohol is voted in we will develop it. Irregardless, I think you will eventually see that developed. I am hopeful you will see something happening there in the near future."

Williamsburg Kiwanis Club changes meeting scheduled to once a month

■ By Mark White
mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Williamsburg Kiwanis Club is hoping that the old adage, "some times less is more," will hold true when it comes to attendance at club meetings.

The club unanimously voted Thursday that starting next year, the club will hold meetings once a month instead of twice monthly.

Starting in February, the club will meet on the second Thursday of the month at noon at the Cumberland Inn.

In October, the club decreased meetings from once a week to twice monthly in an effort to increase meeting attendance, which has been successful so far.

Williamsburg Kiwanis Club President Alvin Sharpe said he thinks reducing the meetings to once a month will further improve attendance at club meetings.

Secretary Virginia Combs informed members Thursday that the Williamsburg club is currently the number one club for growth in the 141-club Kentucky-Tennessee Division of Kiwanis.

A pinning ceremony for the more than one dozen new club members has been scheduled for the club's Jan. 7 meeting.

Also during Thursday's meeting, Sharpe presented Williamsburg Independent School Family Resource and Youth Service Center Director Tammy Stephens with a $300 check.

In addition, Community Trust Bank Vice-President Terrell Medley presented Sharpe with a $1,000 donation from the bank to the club.

TINNITUS AND HYPERACUSIS INFLUENCE A NEURAL NETWORK MORE EXPANSIVE THAN PREVIOUSLY THOUGHT

Tinnitus is the most common service-related disability for veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. Often described as a ringing in the ears, more than 1.5 million former service members, one out of every two combat veterans, report having this sometimes debilitating condition, resulting in more than $2 billion dollars in annual disability payments by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.

Tinnitus is largely a mystery, a phantom sound heard in the absence of actual sound. Tinnitus patients "hear" ringing, buzzing or hissing in their ears much like an amputee might "feel" pain in a missing limb. It is a symptom, not a disease, and though exposure to loud noise may cause it, some cases have no apparent trigger.

Existing treatments, meantime, are unreliable, either not working at all or varying greatly in effectiveness for those who report some relief.

But a global research effort has made a major breakthrough that provides new insights into how tinnitus, and the often co-occurring hyperacusis, a condition that causes sounds to be perceived as intolerably loud, might develop and be sustained.

Functional MRI studies show the abnormal activity underlying tinnitus and hyperacusis isn't confined to a specific brain location, but actually involves a neural network more expansive than previously thought. The findings could lead to a testable model that helps to identify what region or regions of the brain might be responsible for causing the two conditions.

Knox Co. mother charged with hitting eight-year-old

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Gray woman wanted in Knox County for allegedly hitting her eight-year-old and pushing her mother was arrested Saturday morning in Laurel County.

Twenty-seven-year-old Ashley L. Gray has been wanted on the arrest warrant, which was initially issued Sept. 19 following an investigation by Kentucky

State Police Trooper Frank Russell.

According to the warrant, on Sept. 5, Gray hit her child in the eye and struck him a second time in the back of the head before pushing her mother into a coffee table causing unspecified physical injury.

Laurel County Sheriff's Deputy Gilbert Acciardo, the department's public affairs officer, said Jackson had been called out to a verbal domestic dispute at a residence on U.S. 25 in Lily just after midnight.

As part of the call, Deputy Shawn Jackson was checking the identification of the individuals for outstanding warrants.

We do that as a matter of routine on all of our calls.

Gray was taken into custody on the warrant and is being held in the Laurel County Detention Center on a $5,000 cash bond.

No court date has been set.

Corbin man dies in house fire

■ By Tent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

A local man died in a house fire in downtown Corbin last Friday night, and authorities and neighbors think he may have had underlying medical conditions that contributed to his death.

Firefighters and EMS officials worked frantically to save 44-year-old Carl Hammons after he was pulled from the back bedroom of the blazing home at 314 Fourth Street. Ultimately, the efforts were futile.

Corbin Fire Chief Barry McDonald said Hammons more than likely died of smoke inhalation, but also speculates he had other medical conditions that could also have been contributing factors.

"I know our guys had just been there Tuesday on a medical call at that same residence," McDonald said. "He may have had something else going on. I'm not a doctor, so it's hard to know for sure."

"He wasn't burned or anything," McDonald added.

Neighbors said ambulances had been at the residence numerous times in the past couple of weeks.

Tragic: Officials believe smoke inhalation was likely the cause of death for 44-year-old Carl Hammons. Hammons was pronounced dead after firefighters pulled him from his burning home on Fourth Street Friday night.

Andy Croley is investigating the cause of Hammons' death.

The blaze started a little after 9:00 p.m. Witnesses say there were visible flames inside the home before firefighters arrived.

"They went right inside to save him as soon as they got here," one neighbor said. "The firefighters didn't wait at all. They should be commended or what they did."

McDonald said officials believe the fire started in the area of a stove in the home. The fact that Hammons was found in a back bedroom indicates he may have been asleep when the blaze happened, McDonald said, explaining why he was unable to escape. He was found on the floor in the bedroom.

Firefighters performed chest compressions on Hammons and used an AED device several times to no avail. He had a weak pulse when he was taken by Whitley EMS to Baptist Health Corbin where he was later pronounced dead.

McDonald said Hammons was home alone when the fire broke out.

Fire officials stayed on scene for a while afterward ensuring the blaze was completely extinguished.

'Hometown Teams' Smithsonian exhibit coming to Corbin

■ By Trent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Corbin Tourism and Convention Commission has been approved for a grant that will pay for the hosting of a Smithsonian Institution exhibit that focuses on the impact of sports on small-town America.

Called "Hometown Teams," the exhibit is planned to be on display in six Kentucky cities in 2017. Maggie Kriebel, Director of Corbin Tourism, announced proudly last Thursday that Corbin is one of those towns.

"There were 17 applications, so it was a very rigorous process," Kriebel said during the regular monthly meeting of the Corbin Tourism and Convention Commission last Thursday.

"We will be hosting the exhibit for a total of seven weeks ... This is a really big deal that requires training."

"I'm really excited that we did achieve this goal."

"Hometown Teams" will be on display at The Corbin Center from Nov. 18 until Dec. 30 in 2017. Kriebel said application for the grant was made through the Kentucky Humanities Council in conjunction with The Corbin Center and the Corbin Public Library.

Hometown Bank has agreed to donate $500 to promote the exhibit should Corbin be selected as a site. Kriebel said she would serve as Program Coordinator for the exhibit. She said she plans to add to it by doing things like showing the movie "23 Blast" along side it and commissioning a photography exhibit featuring local sports heroes and teams.

Also, she said she would work with local individuals and organizations to create things like collages and other localized displays to go along with the exhibit.

"Hometown Teams" is the Smithsonian's effort to pull in a rural audience by capturing "the stories that unfold on the neighborhood fields and courts, and the underdog heroics, larger-than-life legends, fierce rivalries and gut-wrenching defeats." Kriebel said to be eligible, a town had to be less than 25,000 in population.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved an increase of $300 for the annual July 3 city fireworks display for 2016. The total that will be spent for the show is now $10,000.

Kriebel said officials with the city of Corbin had requested that the fireworks be moved from downtown to The Arena. She did not say at the meeting why the show was being relocated, but officials said previously they had gotten at least one complaint about the display from a local resident this year.

Kriebel added that The Arena has been invited to organize events to coincide with the fireworks display.

- Accepted the annual audit report for the fiscal year 2014-15.

Auditors gave the commission a "clean" opinion, which basically means its records and statements accurately reflect its financial activity during the fiscal year.

At the end of the fiscal year, the commission had $521,566 cash on the books. It collected $309,848 in restaurant tax revenue and $32,327 in transient room tax. There was a positive net change in its primary fund balance of $88,263.

The audit did note four "material weaknesses" regarding internal control of the commission's finances. Auditors said the board's cash was not properly collateralized at the local bank where it's held since it was over the $250,000 normally insured by the FDIC. Also, it noted that Kriebel had not been properly bonded in order to handle funds, none of the commission's employees had proper fraud training, and worker's compensation insurance for commission employees had lapsed and was not renewed before the end of the fiscal year.

All of the weaknesses pointed out in the audit have since been corrected. Kriebel said somewhere to conduct fraud training is currently being sought.

- Accepted the financial report from Board Accountant Kyle Perkins.

Perkins said the commission recently received a $94,000 check from the city of Corbin for tax collections from the first quarter of the fiscal year bringing the total collections so far to $294,000, a little less than the $337,500 that was budgeted.

"That is a little short from projections But not uncommon. As the years go by we start to see these trends."

Perkins said the collections typically take an uptick in the third quarter of each fiscal year.

Total income from the period of July through November for the commission was $654,365 on an accrual basis.

The commission has given $425,000 for the operation of The Arena so far.

Currently the commission has $520,000 cash on hand.

Corbin High School criminal justice class makes turkey boxes

The students at Corbin Independent School's Criminal Justice/Law Enforcement have been working on a lesson in the law enforcement creed, "To Serve and Protect," preparing turkey boxes to be donated to area families in need.

The 60 students in the class under the direction of instructor and former state trooper Tackett Wilson have been working over the past month to prepare the 15 boxes that will be turned over to area law enforcement Thursday.

Wilson said the students decorated the boxes and prepared cards that will accompany them.

Walmart donated the turkeys, stuffing, vegetables and drinks that are packaged in the boxes.

Corbin Police, along with sheriff's deputies from Knox, Laurel and Whitley counties, will pick up the boxes and deliver them to the selected families.

Friendship Center saved from closure

Local women step up and find ways to keep unique thrift store afloat in face of financial crisis

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

When a group of five nuns founded The Friendship Center in Williamsburg in 1970, they created a charity that ran much like a modern day Goodwill.

The nuns would take in used clothing and other items that were donated, and turn around and sell it to the poor at relatively cheap prices, like a quarter an item.

The nuns wanted to empower women.

“They wanted to help women that were divorced and had children, but couldn’t afford clothing. They would get stuff donated and sell it really cheap just to help,” said Jayma Moore, the new president of The Friendship Center Board of Directors.

Moore said she decided to get involved with The Friendship Center after getting a call from Sister Leann Herda, who was one of the founders of the center, informing her that the board of directors planned to close the center for good because they couldn’t financially keep it running.

Moore said she and some of the parishioners at the local Catholic church in Williamsburg started talking, and then began beating the bushes looking for sources of help for the center.

“A lot of organizations have come together to help us to reopen it. We are financially set right now and we are doing good...”

— JAYMA MOORE

PRESIDENT, FRIENDSHIP CENTER BOARD

For instance, Moore approached her employer, Firestone, which donated enough money to pay for utilities at the Friendship Center through at least all of 2016.

“A lot of organizations have come together to help us to reopen it,” she added. “We are financially set right now and we are doing good.”

The Friendship Center held its grand re-opening recently to show off the newly renovated interior, and to let people know they are still in business and still trying to help others.

“People will see a huge difference when they come in because it has been totally redone,” Moore said.

She described The Friendship Center as essentially a thrift store.

“We have all kinds new clothing, shoes and shirts. We have household items. We are actually having a truck coming sometime this month from Ames, Iowa that will have furniture and all kinds of stuff,” Moore said. “We don’t know what is coming on the truck, but it will be loaded.”

In addition to selling low cost goods, Moore said the Friendship Center would also give people the option of doing work at the center in lieu of paying cash for items.

Moore said the new board of directors has made several changes to the center in an effort to make it more successful, including lowering the prices on merchandise sold in the store.

“We are doing more outreach. We want to start doing crafts and stuff for the kids, and just have a nice little place where people can come and get stuff at a reasonable price and help the community,” Moore said.

Since the change of management, Moore said the center is seeing regular customers return, many of whom drop by each morning for a cup of coffee while they read the morning paper.

Saving the day: Local citizens Jayma Moore, Joan Thompson and Joyce Wilson banded together to help save The Friendship Center in Williamsburg from closure. It has been open since 1970 and is a charity center that exists, mainly, to help low income local residents find affordable clothing.

The center will be open from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Occasionally, Moore said she will stop by the center on Monday’s during her lunch breaks and people can shop then too.

In addition, she also sometimes opens the center on Sundays after Mass.

Moore encourages those wanting to donate to the center to please drop off donations during work hours because otherwise, the center might not get the items.

All donated items will be put to good use.

For instance, if an article of clothing is too torn to wear, Moore said it would be recycled for use as rags for places like gas stations.

Joan Thompson, the center’s director and Moore’s sister, will staff the center Tuesday through Saturday.

In addition, the center will have two other employees, who are working through a program called “Experience Works.”

Moore said those two employees used to work at the center previously and wanted to come back under the new management.

Thompson admitted she gave it quite a bit of thought before agreeing to run the center.

“After I got in here, it was a challenge and I met so many nice people. We have regular customers now. I enjoy working with people,” Thompson said.

Moore said she thinks Thompson is one of the reasons why the Friendship Center will succeed now where it didn’t before.

“You have to have somebody that is outgoing. You have to have somebody to make a total change where people will see it, and then you have to be able to network with other organizations, like CAP (Christian Appalachian Project),” Moore added.

“You have to be out and visible and talk about it and let people know that it is here. A lot of people thought that it closed and had been closed for a long time because it kept opening and closing.”

Moore said the previous board of directors did a good job, but that sometimes a fresh set of eyes are needed to see improvements that can be made.

Moore added that The Friendship Center hopes to make some additional improvements in March, when an annual group of volunteers from Iowa come to town, who will help revitalize the front of the building with new doors and new paint. While the Friendship Center isn’t a “catholic charity” directly affiliated with the Catholic Church, all the new board members are catholic, Moore noted.

Unemployment rate falls in Whitley and 109 other Kentucky counties

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

Unemployment rates fell in 109 Kentucky counties between October 2014 and October 2015, including Whitley County, but rose in seven counties and remained the same in four counties, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

Whitley County’s unemployment rate dropped from 7.0 percent in October 2014 to 5.7 percent in October 2015. This was a 0.3 percent decrease from the September’s rate. Whitley County had the 33rd highest October unemployment rate in Kentucky.

Knox County’s unemployment rate dropped from 8.0 percent in October 2014 to 6.7 percent in October 2015. Knox County had the 21st highest October unemployment rate in Kentucky. Knox County’s October unemployment rate was 0.3 percent lower than September’s unemployment rate.

Laurel County’s unemployment rate dropped from 6.2 percent in October 2014 to 5.1 percent in October 2015. Laurel County tied Rockcastle County for the 45th highest October unemployment rate in Kentucky. Laurel County’s October unemployment rate was 0.4 percent lower than September’s unemployment rate.

Among other neighboring counties, Bell County tied Carter County for the 17th highest October unemployment rate with 7.1 percent. McCreary County tied Jackson County for the 22nd highest October unemployment rate in the state with 6.6 percent.

Statewide, Kentucky’s unemployment rate dropped from 5.1 percent in October 2014 to 4.3 percent in October 2015, which is 0.3 percent lower than September’s rate.

Nationally, the unemployment rate is 4.8 percent.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 2.8 percent. It was followed by Fayette County, 3.1 percent; Oldham, Scott and Spencer counties, 3.2 percent each; Owen and Shelby counties, 3.3 percent each; and Boone, Campbell and Madison counties, 3.4 percent each.

Magoffin County recorded the state’s highest unemployment rate at 11.3 percent. It was followed by Owsley County, 9.2 percent; Letcher County, 9.1 percent; Harlan County, 9 percent; Wolfe County, 8.6 percent; Leslie County, 8.5 percent; Knott and Pike counties, 8.3 percent each; Clay County, 8.2 percent; and Lee County, 8.1 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working. Civilian labor force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work.

They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks. The statistics in this story are not seasonally adjusted because of the small sample size for each county.

Whitley County has a civilian labor force of 12,588 people with 11,873 employed and 715 unemployed. Statewide, Kentucky has a civilian labor force of 1,929,450 people with 1,847,082 employed and 82,368 unemployed.

WEST: Never set out to be a broadcaster

From the front page

Lee Rose, Dan Issel, C.M. Newton, and Larry Hopkins all recommended me. I got the job and initially worked with Joe Dean (Joe Dean, Sr., of "string music" fame)."

It was here with TVS that Hammond and Conley's path crossed once again. Conley, as a junior, was a star on the Ashland Tomcats powerhouse squad that was the state title in 1961, while losing only once during a 31-1 season. And the so-so Hammond's played on the Lafayette team, the only one to beat Ashland that year.

"I've reminded him of that several times over the years," laughed Hammond.

Hammond and Conley at one time were considered one of the best broadcast teams in America.

From high school sports, to WVLC radio, to WLEX-TV, to the Keeneland sales, to working with Host Communications, and the Keeneland broadcast, Hammond kept moving up the professional ladder.

"Tom's a national sports figure," says Jim Host. "The people at NBC think the highest of him, and so does everyone who ever meets him. He's never let his ego get in the way. He's just like he was when he worked at WLEX in that he has never changed in how he treats people."

Hammond and Conley have the distinction of being involved in the first basketball game where the referees used their TV monitor to review the replay to decide which players were involved in a scuffle. The game was in the 1983 NCAA tourney in Dayton between Morehead and North Carolina A T & T.

"The officials were criticized for their actions," Hammond said. "We praised them for doing it and wanting to get the call right."

Tom Hammond has become one of the most versatile sportscasters in the history of television. Working with NBC, he has broadcast the Orange Bowl, NFL, NBA, Notre Dame football, and, of course horse racing's Triple Crown. However, it's the Olympics that have probably put Hammond's face and voice in more homes than any other sporting event.

"I have worked 11 Olympics, summer and winter, dating back to Seoul, South Korea in 1988," he said.

He has made viewers feel comfortable in his description of basketball, diving, track and field, gymnastics, and figure skating, without being overpowering and trying to upstage the event he is covering.

Never forgetting his broadcasting roots, Hammond is quick to pay homage to the likes of Cawood Ledford, Dick Enberg, Claude Sullivan, and J.B. Falconer, all of which recognized the hidden talents of Hammond in his early years.

While there are few sportscasters with the range of experience of Hammond, it comes as a surprise that he has never broadcast tennis or golf. "I've had the opportunity, but turned it down."

Hammond figures he has flown in excess of six million miles, and with an NBC contract that runs through 2016, he'll be adding to it with a gig at the Rio Olympics next summer.

In the meantime, he'll also continue to enjoy his 1,000 bottle wine collection at his Lexington hoe.

"I became interested in wine in the 1980s," he adds. "I had a wine cellar built in my basement, and the acquisition of the wine is almost as enjoyable as drinking it."

There's no excuse. Get up, get out, and get going!

multiple used syringes. A search of Allen produced another used syringe, along with four clear plastic baggies.

With Allen and Patterson in custody, Proffitt said officers turned their attention to the vehicle.

Inside the vehicle, officers reported finding a metal box containing 17 grams of methamphetamine along with a set of digital scales and a cell phone.

In a second box hidden behind the seat was an unopened syringe. Nearby were a large machete and multiple cell phones.

Proffitt stated that Allen and Patterson both had dilated pupils and slurred speech, consistent with being under the influence of drugs.

Patterson reportedly admitted to using methamphetamine earlier that day.

Allen was charged with first-degree fleeing or evading police, resisting arrest, possession of drug paraphernalia, third-degree criminal mischief, first-degree possession of a controlled substance — methamphetamine, trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 feet of a school, first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance — methamphetamine, public intoxication — controlled substance, and carrying a concealed weapon.

Patterson was charged with public intoxication — controlled substance, second-degree fleeing or evading police, first-degree possession of a controlled substance — methamphetamine, trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 feet of a school, first-degree in a controlled substance — methamphetamine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Allen is being held on a $50,000 cash bond. Patterson's bond has been set at $25,000 fully secured.

Each as pleaded not guilty to the charges and is scheduled to return to Whitley District Court Dec. 22 for a preliminary hearing to determine whether there is probable cause to present the case to a Whitley County Grand Jury.

POWELL: Will appear in O, The Oprah Magazine in June

From the front page

“I entered the recipe that my sons and I had put together and sort of forgot all about it,” Powell said.

“I’ve never really won anything. When I got that email, I just spent the whole day in complete shock.”

Powell will receive a trip for two to New York City for four days and nights for a photo shoot with O, The Oprah Magazine. The photos, a story about her prize-winning salsa recipe and the recipe itself will appear in the June edition of the magazine. She will also receive a $1,500 IKEA gift card and a “Dinner Party Kit” consisting of kitchen and food-related IKEA products.

Powell said the salsa recipe was conceived when she and her two sons, Noble and Brian, decided to do a little kitchen experimentation together about 10 years ago.

“The kids and I have always cooked together. We had all these tomatoes just rolling out of the garden that year so we decided to make salsa with it,” Powell said. “We researched it and found some recipes that we liked, but then we just sat down and got busy and came up with something on our own. We spent the whole day coming up with this wonderful salsa.”

The key, Powell said, is the delicious Roma tomatoes her husband, Kenny, lovingly grows in his home garden where they live in the Wofford community of Whitley County.

“His tomatoes are phenomenal. He really babies them,” Powell said.

The first batch they all made together ... there was so much they decided to can some to have during the winter. Now they do it every year.

Powell said she was worried that IKEA would want to taste the salsa when she was announced as the winner, but that she wouldn’t have any left. Luckily, one jar remains to take to New York.

What she believes won the contest as much as anything is the special story that goes along with the creation of the salsa. In hindsight, she said the day she spent with her sons mixing ingredients and being creative was priceless.

“It really was amazing,” she said. “My sons and my husband, they are the love of my life. We’ve always done everything together. It was a really neat day.”

“We’ve gotten together plenty of times since then to make the salsa. We improve it a little every time we’ve made it. It’s really a simple recipe, but I think it’s usually those little simple pleasures of life that are the very best anyway.”

Powell said she is a regular reader of “O, The Oprah Magazine” and just happened to see an advertisement for the contest in it one night when she couldn’t sleep. She said she never enters contests usually, but that this one caught her attention, and she felt the salsa recipe was a perfect fit.

Turns out, she was right.

“These and the thousands of other wonderful stories we read really exemplify the idea that there is so much more to food than food,” said Lisa Hajra, Together, We Eat Project Leader for IKEA. “Having shared just a few examples of treasured family food moments, we hope to inspire people to create more food-related memories together in what we often refer to as the heart of the home – the kitchen.”

Powell said she comes from a “long line” of family members that tended their own home gardens and created family recipes. She’s put together a 150-page recipe book of her own that focuses on her family stories and features favorite recipes.

Together, We Eat is a part of a yearlong IKEA effort focusing on everyday life in and around the kitchen – celebrating the many treasured moments that happen there and simple solutions as they relate to growing, cooking, serving and storing food.

Powell was one of three top-prize winners, but a total of 47 first-prize winners across all categories were awarded a $250 IKEA gift card. All 50 recipes and stories will be featured on TogetherWeEat.com/contest at various points throughout 2016, starting with the three grand prize winners.

Since its 1943 founding in Sweden, IKEA has offered home furnishings of good design and function at affordable prices. There are currently more than 377 IKEA stores in 47 countries, including 41 in the U.S.

Supplies out of Tewksbury, Mass.

Kentucky State Police Division of Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Officer Chris McQueen said Nicholson reported that he was headed north on the rain soaked road when a Toyota car suddenly cut in front of him. Nicholson attempted to stop, but the trailer he was hauling jackknifed, sending the rig into the median where it overturned and came to rest against the cable barrier separating north and south-bound traffic.

“It could have been a lot worse,” McQueen said of the wreck.

“The driver stated that his seatbelt saved him from any type of injuries,” he said.

Oak Grove and Woodbine firefighters were called to the scene.

In addition to providing traffic control, McQueen said firefighters remained on scene because the fuel caps to the truck’s diesel tanks had come off and because the truck contained a load of chemical fertilizer.

Traffic on northbound I-75 backed up for several miles as one lane was closed while emergency crews worked to clear the scene.

McQueen said the second wreck occurred near the 21-mile marker when 44-year-old Steven Cureton of Williamsburg, who was travelling north in the passing lane, quickly swerved into the slow lane, rear-ending a Nissan Van driven by 22-year-old Kayla Beason, and shoving it into a tractor-trailer truck. Two passengers in the van, 24-year-old Michael Beason, Jr. and a minor child were airlifted to the University of Kentucky Hospital. Kayla Beason was taken by ambulance to Baptist Health Corbin.

McQueen said I-75 at that point was reduced to one lane for about five hours and was shut down completely for a period of time.

said.

Woodward estimated the changes will cost $1,000 in materials, which included 2x4 and 4x4 lumber, tin roofing, and sheetrock.

“I’ve got some stuff I can use to start,” Woodward said, adding there are several residents with carpentry skills that will be helping with the project.

“The sooner we get this done, the better,” he said.

The shelter operates on private donations. Woodward said it will continue to do so and anything the public can do to help hasten the changes is appreciated.

Donations may be brought to the shelter on U.S. 25W, or donors may contact Woodward at 549-2922.

“If someone doesn’t want to bring money, they can bring the materials,” Woodward said, adding that the shelter also needs to replace some of the mats and cots used by the residents.

“Some of them are getting worn,” Woodward

said.

Anyone that would like to help but doesn’t have the means to donate money or materials, donations of time are also welcome.

Woodward said hands to help with the changes are welcome and appreciated.

“Any church that wants to do a project, this would be good,” Woodward suggested.

Woodward said the shelter has a capacity of 70 people, divided evenly between men and women. The shelter typically has 25 to 30 people at a given time with two-third of them being men. That number increases to about 35 in the winter months.

The shelter opened in 1990.

Woodward said 300 to 400 individuals come in to the shelter each year. In addition to shelter, individuals receive food and clothing, which is either purchased with monetary donations or comes through direct donations to the shelter.

“We don’t get any government funding for operating expenses,” Woodward said.

The shelter is a non-profit organization so any donations are tax deductible.

that is reportedly not life threatening.

When questioned by deputies, Acciardo stated that Napier admitted to taking Nurontin, Suboxone and Klonopin. When deputies attempted to take Napier into custody, she reportedly became combative, banging her head multiple times on the kitchen table while screaming and cursing at deputies.

Napier was charged with second-degree assault, second-degree disorderly conduct, menacing and resisting arrest. In addition, deputies served an outstanding Laurel County Bench warrant for failure to appear on charges of theft by unlawful taking – shoplifting and second-degree criminal trespassing.

Napier was taken to the hospital for treatment of injuries and, upon her release, will be taken to the detention center.

Acciardo said prior to deputies’ arrival, the sibling’s mother, 50-year-old Kimberly Wilder allegedly took the knife used in the stabbing and attempted to clean it up and hide it. Deputies recovered the knife, charging Wilder with attempting to obstruct governmental operations and tampering with physical evidence. Acciardo said Wilder also refused to cooperate with deputies, leading to an additional charge of resisting arrest.

Wilder added a final charge of third degree terroristic threatening at the Laurel County Detention Center when she threatened the lives of the arresting officers.

“She told the deputies she had family that would take care of them,” Acciardo said.

Acciardo said neither the name nor an update on the condition of the victim were available.

Sex abuse suspect still in jail

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Dec. 21 preliminary hearing has been scheduled for a convicted sex offender, who now lives in Williamsburg and was arrested on Dec. 7 for allegedly sexually abusing a six-year-old girl.

During court hearings Monday morning, Whitley District Judge Cathy Prewitt left $20,000 cash bonds in effect for Arnold Lindquist, Sarah Lively and Amber Danielle Lively, who have all been charged in connection with the case.

After Lindquist, 73, was brought into the courtroom in a wheelchair, local attorney B.J. Foley noted that neither Lindquist's lead attorney, Paul Croley, nor Whitley County Sheriff's Deputy Jonas Saunders, the lead investigating officer, could be present for Monday's scheduled preliminary hearing and asked for it to be postponed.

Arnold Lindquist is charged with first-degree sexual abuse, and pled not guilty during his arraignment Thursday.

Sarah E. Lively, 41, and Amber D. Lively, 29, are both charged with failure to report child abuse in connection with the case.

Sarah Lively was also charged with second-degree criminal abuse of a child under 12 years old.

Amber Lively was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, and was served with an arrest warrant for failure to appear. On Dec. 7, Saunders responded with social services to Lindquist's 220 Kenny Bug Road residence to investigate a sex abuse complaint.

According to Lindquist's arrest citation, Sarah Lively and Amber Lively allegedly told investigators that Lindquist kissed the victim and touched the girl in her "private area" between her legs several times.

The victim told investigators that Lindquist allegedly tried to kiss her several times and touched her between her legs in her "private," Lindquist citation stated.

The incident allegedly took place at Lindquist's residence, according to his arrest citation.

Sarah Lively was allegedly present when the sexual abuse incident occurred, failed to do anything about it and waited two weeks to report it, Saunders wrote on her arrest citation.

Amber Lively allegedly had knowledge of the abuse for two weeks but did not report it, Saunders wrote on her arrest citation.

Amber Lively allegedly "lied several times" before telling investigators that "the child had confided to her what had happened."

Amber Lively's arrest citation also alleged that she was in possession of a syringe and cut straw that had residue inside.

Amber Lively pled guilty to the drug paraphernalia charge during her arraignment Thursday. She is scheduled to be sentenced

Feb. 3 in that case.

Amber Lively also has a Feb. 3 pre-trial conference scheduled in her failure to report child dependency, neglect or abuse case. She has pled not guilty to that charge.

Sarah Lively pled not guilty to her charges Thursday and on Monday morning agreed to waive her case to the grand jury rather than have a preliminary hearing.

Prewitt ordered her to report to Whitley Circuit Court on Jan. 19 to see if a grand jury has indicted her.

Convicted sex offender

According to the Kentucky State Police Sex Offender Registry, Lindquist is a move-in offender from Florida. His original Florida conviction was for sexual battery/coerce of a child by adult.

The Florida Sexual Offenders and Predators registry notes Lindquist's case was adjudicated on June 26, 1992 in Orange, Florida.

Lindquist also allegedly uses the aliases, Arnold Bray and Arnold Lindquist, and the age of his victim in his Florida case was 16 years old, according to a flier that can be printed out from the Kentucky registry's website.

The Kentucky sex offender registry lists Lindquist as compliant and notes he is required to register as a sex offender for 10 years.

A News Journal review of Whitley County court records indicates a Whitley County Grand Jury indicted Lindquist on April 4, 2003, for bribery of a public servant, first-degree possession of a controlled substance and for being a second-degree persistent felony offender in connection with a Nov. 10, 2002 incident.

Kentucky State Police Troopers Mike Witt and Scott Bunch reportedly found Lindquist parked on a logging road in a van about 11:30 p.m.

When officers went to investigate, they discovered Lindquist was allegedly in the process of using intravenous drugs in the van and found a plastic bag with a white powder substance.

"He had his pants pulled down in the driver's seat with a picture of young girls in the front area of van," Witt wrote on an arrest citation.

Lindquist allegedly offered the officers $1,000 each to let him go, Witt stated on an arrest citation. "He had $1,700 cash in his wallet and offered to go to the ATM to get the other $300 to pay us," Witt wrote.

Lindquist pled guilty to drug possession and bribery charges in September 2005 in exchange for prosecutors recommending an eight-year prison sentence.

The persistent felony offender charge was dismissed as part of Lindquist's plea deal.

In 2009, the Kentucky Court of Appeals upheld Lindquist conviction in this case.

1 assault suspect free on bond, other jailed

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

One of the two Williamsburg men, who allegedly assaulted a University of the Cumberlands student earlier this month, got out of the Whitley County Detention Center Monday afternoon while the other one will likely remain behind bars until at least mid-January.

Both Devin "DP" Preyer, 21, and Davonta "DJ" Jerome Rozier, 23, have been charged with second-degree assault and robbery in connection with a Dec. 4 incident involving Zane Parker behind Rob Cook Hall.

Both Preyer and Rozier were scheduled for preliminary hearings Monday morning in Whitley District Court but instead agreed to waive their cases to the Whitley County Grand Jury.

At the recommendation of Commonwealth Attorney Allen Trimble's Office, Whitley District Judge Cathy Prewitt agreed to modify Preyer's $20,000 cash bond to a $20,000 third-party surety bond that Preyer's girlfriend, Leslie Humphrey, could sign.

Humphrey lives in Williamsburg. Preyer was released on bond about 2 p.m. Monday.

Preyer's attorney, Jim Wren II, noted during Monday's hearing that Humphrey is five-months pregnant with Preyer's child.

Under the terms of the bond agreement, Preyer will be on home incarceration at Humphrey's residence.

Rozier pled not guilty to the charges during his arraignment Thursday.

"He does not have anywhere to go here in Kentucky at this time," public defender Brian Reed told Prewitt Monday.

Prewitt then ordered that Rozier's bond remain the same at $20,000 cash.

Preyer told police that Parker, the victim, allegedly threw a punch at him so he fought back punching and kicking Parker, which caused serious physical injury to the victim's head and face, according to his arrest citation.

Preyer also allegedly stole the victim's computer after the assault and told him, "I will blow your brains out." Lt. Jim Pool wrote on the arrest citation.

Both Rozier and the victim are students at Cumberlands. Preyer is a former Cumberlands student.

Preyer was dismissed from the university in the fall of 2014.

As part of his dismissal, Preyer was permanently barred from campus.

"Mr. Preyer insists that he is absolutely not guilty of this assault and he expects to be vindicated," Wren said.

Wren said that Preyer contends he was acting in self-defense during the altercation.

"He said the complaining witness was 6'4" and had at least 100 pounds on him and swung at him first," Wren noted. "He is 5'7" and weighs 160 pounds. Even though he is much shorter, he was always taught to defend himself and he defended himself."

Wren said that Preyer wasn't aware that Rozier joined in the fight because "he was so busy to keep himself from being assaulted by the complaining witness."

Wren said he is still in the process of investigating the matter and doesn't know yet what the cause of the altercation was.

"I do not know what the history is. I know that at one time all three were at one time football players," Wren said.

KSP, Forcht Bank team up for 'Shop with a Trooper'

A gray Christmas: Kentucky State Police Post 10 in Harlan teamed up with Forcht Bank officials Thursday for the Knox County portion of the post's annual "Shop With a Trooper" to benefit children in need. With the help of Forcht Bank, each of the 21 children from Knox County received $120 to spend on new clothes, shoes and a new toy/game. In addition, Forcht Bank ensured each child left with a new bike.

That is all there is?

Every year it's the same. What to give the person who has everything. Flat screen TV's are good and the prices seem to have gone down a bit. Electronic gadgets and games are popular but that's not an option for me since I don't even know what to ask for. They make them so fast that they become obsolete within a week. Plus, they take me out of my comfort zone when a young "with it" clerk asks me what I want. I don't know what to say.

In the fun gift category I saw an ad for a Mona Lisa pillow that laughs when you squeeze it. This would end the eternal question people have been asking the mysterious looking lady these many years: Are you really smiling?

Seriously, most of us have everything we need. It goes without saying that many of us can't even remember what we got last Christmas. And re-gifting could be downright embarrassing. Imagine the giftee opening a present he or she gave you last year.

Thinking about it, I can't imagine a present that would excite me as much as the box of chocolate covered cherries from Newberry's Five and Ten Cent Store given to me over a half a century ago. Or of anything else bought from that hallowed place that sticks in my memory. A 25 cent box of chocolate covered cherries, dainty ladies handkerchiefs? A set of Evening in Paris perfume? Except for the candy they are all collectibles that are hard to find. I know because I've searched for them in antiques shops and failed to find them.

Now that I've gotten myself in a nostalgic mood, thoughts of Christmas's past begin to crowd my mind. And I can't help thinking about the little things that were once so important but are taken so much for granted in these modern times. Like, for example, oranges and apples and nuts and grocery-mixed candy in the bottom of our Christmas stockings. They were not an everyday thing in our lives. But oh, so delicious when we delved into the bottom of that stocking and savored them for days. If only we could recapture the simple pleasures we enjoyed back then.

The economic situation doesn't seem to have curtailed what people are spending today, judging by the crowded stores and buying over the internet. But hopefully, people are being selective in their gift-giving. and will concentrate on practical gifts.. In years past, Christmas buying became so lavish that it spun out of control, took on a carnival-like atmosphere of glitter and spending. And today, it has become even more so.

Yet, the day after Christmas when we look at the torn wrapping paper under the bereft-looking Christmas tree, we will be left with the sad feeling of an old Peggy Lee song, "Is That All There Is?" Somehow, we always get that letdown feeling.

This year we can make it different. This year we can concentrate on what Christmas is really all about. Home and hearth and family and PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TOWARD MEN. This is real fulfillment.

Praline Pound Cake

Courtesy White Lily Flour

Ingredients

No-Stick Spray
1 1/2 cups chopped pecans
1 1/2 cups butter
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
3 cups firmly packed brown sugar
6 large eggs
3 1/4 cups White Lily® All Purpose Flour
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Instructions

HEAT oven to 325°F. Coat a 10-inch tube pan with flour no-stick cooking spray. Sprinkle 1/2 cup chopped pecans in pan.

BEAT butter and cream cheese in large bowl with electric mixer on medium speed. Beat in brown sugar about 5 minutes or until very light. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Fold in flour, just until combined. Do not over mix. Stir in vanilla and remaining 1 cup chopped pecans. Spoon batter into prepared pan. Place tube pan on baking sheet.

BAKE 1 hour 15 minutes to 1 hour 30 minutes or until wooden toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove to cooling rack to cool completely.

Former Corbin Redhound, Taylor Jones, (last on the right), and team members of the 13th Company of the Navy ran the game ball from Annapolis to Philadelphia (approximately 120 miles). The Army does the same from West Point. A total of 10 to 15 members are chosen for the run. The team members all leave Annapolis running together. A van travels with them. At some point they begin taking turns running while the others ride in the van. As they approach Philadelphia, all of the seniors run and enter the stadium together with the game ball.

■ Staff Report

society@corbinnewsjournal.com

University of the Cumberland's (UC) student-athletes had a wonderful opportunity to participate in a project that is bigger than any of them. Student athletes from Women's Lacrosse, Football, Baseball, and Men's Wrestling teams travelled to three local elementary schools in the area to become personal shoppers. Joining with the campus Mountain Outreach (MO) Ministry, Cumberland's athletes assisted elementary students to pick out Christmas gifts for their parents or grandparents.

The reactions of the children were heart touching. "Do we really get to pick whatever we want? It's really free?" asked a small Boston school student to her teacher as she walked into the gym to see the MO gifts. "This is so cool; My Nana will love this present, especially since I picked it out all by myself."

Director of Mountain Outreach, Marc Hensley, explained the purpose and heart of this specific outreach program. "The purpose of Gift Day is to get children involved in the giving part of Christmas. We want the kids to understand the good feeling that comes from giving as well as from receiving," he stated. Hensley also commented, "It's great to get the athletes involved too, Usually their practice and game schedules keep them from participating in other outreach opportunities but this specific opportunity allows the athletes to connect with many of the children who play sports in the local elementary schools." UC's MO program raises funds throughout the year with which to purchase the gifts for the 735 elementary students to give to their loved ones for Christmas.

The athletes enjoy the influence they get to have on the students as well. Football junior, Tan Hudson from Annville, KY, spoke about his first year experience with the program. "It's a big day for these kids knowing that they are able to give their parents a gift when they probably couldn't otherwise. It's great just to be able to talk to the kids, see their smiles, and share their day."

The infectious giving spirit captivated the athletes as they spent time with the children. One player held a bright-eyed child up above the others so he could see the table of gifts to make his selection. Another made it a point to get each child he helped to laugh and to have the biggest smile possible by simply talking with them and letting them know he was a friend.

Mathias Brewers, a senior baseball player from Lebanon, OH, commented on his experience, "It's always a good feeling to help out but the best part is seeing the smiling faces on the kids when they leave knowing they'll be able to give their loved ones a gift." This was Mathias' second year to help with the event.

Head Baseball Coach Brad Shelton spoke about the changes he has seen in his players through this program over the years. He commented, "It's good for players to get involved in the community. It actually encourages our students as much as it does the children they help. It gives our students a chance to explore the area and become a part of the larger community, and it helps remind them that there are more important things in life than just school and sports."

The goal of the program is simple: give. Whether it is the giving of gifts, the giving of time, the giving of a helping hand or the giving of a smile, the goal was joyously exceeded. Everyone involved left each school with a giving spirit and a heart filled with love.

Cumberlands hosts Mountain Outreach Gift Day

On Saturday, December 12, the Mountain Outreach program at University of the Cumberlands held its annual Gift Day, serving 181 families with food and Christmas gifts for children.

All pre-registered children, ages infant to 14, received two gifts, which were obtained by Mountain Outreach during the annual "Midnight Shopping Spree" and also through donations by individuals and churches. "Gift Day went very well this year," Mountain Outreach Director, Marc Hensley said. "When we added the food items to the event last year we felt like we were really making a more significant impact. Rather than just gifts for the children, we were ministering to the needs of the entire family. Many households contain senior adults as well as children. Making sure the entire family has substantial food through the holiday season is a priority for us."

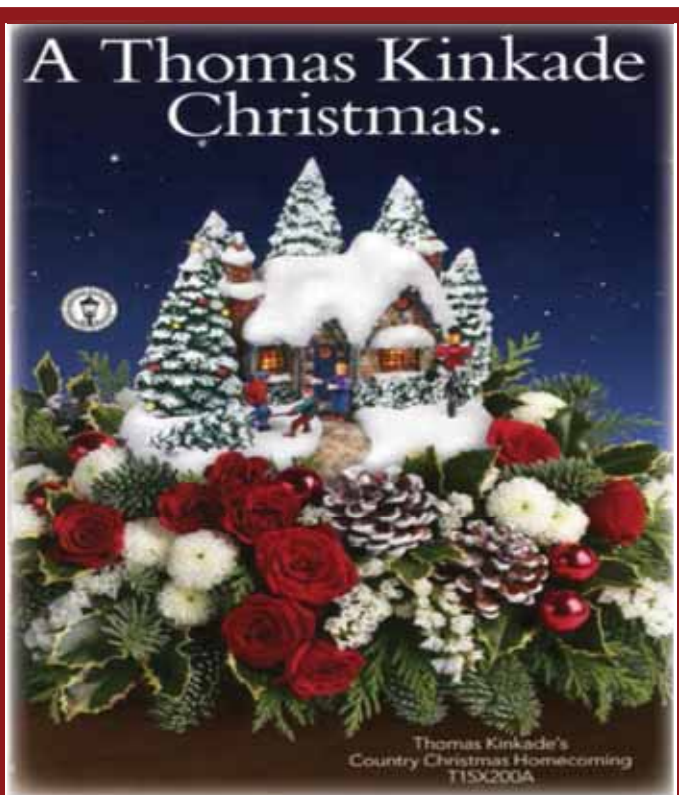

Through this year's Gift Day, Mountain Outreach served 181 families, including 369 children. Families with infants in the home also received diapers and wipes. Each family received a food voucher for the local IGA worth $50.

The event distributed over 31,000 pounds of food items that included a turkey or ham, hamburger meat, hot-dogs, fresh bread, fruit and vegetables. Participating families also received family friendly food items children can open and eat or microwave themselves such as mac & cheese, spaghetti, fruit cups, cereals, pop tarts, granola bars and juice boxes.

This year, 102 volunteers from a variety of churches and backgrounds, including 44 students and staff from University of the Cumberlands, served at Gift Day.

*Congratulations
Joyce Willis*

Williamsburg, Ky – Williamsburg Health and Rehabilitation's Joyce Willis was recognized at the 2015 Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities Quality Awards Banquet by being named the Association's Top Supportive Caregiver on Nov. 19.

"We are so proud of Joyce for being recognized among the best in the state in her respective field," administrator Michelle Jarboe said. "She demonstrates her commitment to providing quality care every day and is representative of our staff that cares for our residents."

The Association recognizes the Top 10 Nurses, Caregivers and Supportive Caregivers each year at the Quality Awards Banquet, where more than 50 individuals and facilities are honored. Joyce is well-loved for her home cooking for the residents, including coming in at 3 a.m. to cook breakfast complete with homemade biscuits.

"Joyce is an outstanding caregiver at Williamsburg providing quality services and compassionate care to residents every day," said KAHCF board chair Debra Finneran. "And while it is a wonderful award, it cannot compare to the pride in the knowledge of a job well done or the thanks she receives every day from their residents and families. We celebrate this honor and the recognition along with her."

card expire? Is there a processing fee? If there an inactivity fee? Can I use the card online?

The good news is your gift card will no longer expire in three, six or 12 months. Your gift card will be good for at least five years from the date of purchase. Do not feel as if you need to rush out to buy something just to spend the card quickly.

Even if your card expires, you may still be able to spend any remaining funds on the card by requesting a replacement card from the issuer. The new card should be issued free of charge.

Read the gift card and/or its packaging closely; any fees such as an inactivity fee or processing charge must be disclosed on either the card or the packagaccess to fresh water. Check your water sources now. Are the heaters in good repair? Turn them on and check the water temperature.

Shelter is important to give horses a place out of the elements. A good wind-blocking shelter in the pasture can lessen cold stress on your horses. Make sure you have fresh bedding, and the shelter is clean. It does not take long for bedding to get wet, so you need to check it often.

Horses need to eat between 1.5 and 2 percent of their body weight in food each day to maintain their weight. That figure does not account for any activity. In colder weather, horses will need to eat more to stay warm. An average horse of 1,000 pounds, in good body condition, will need to eat at least 20 pounds

Getting the most from your holiday gift cards

Gift cards are one of the most popular holiday gifts. Many of us will add a new gift card to our wallet over the holiday season.

Sometimes, the "rules" associated with gift cards can be a mystery, leading to many gift cards being unused. When does the

ing. The 2010 Credit Card Act placed limits on the fees that the issuer can charge. Typically, you can still be charged a dormancy fee if you have not used your card within one year.

Finally, make certain that you know what type of card you have. The Credit Card Act rules only apply to gift cards; this includes store cards, as well as gift cards with a credit card logo, such as Visa or MasterCard. There are other types of prepaid cards that are not included in the legislation such as reloadable prepaid cards or store rebate or promotional cards.

Preparing horses for winter

Winter will be here before you know it. It is a good time to start thinking about your horses' needs before the cold, snow and ice arrive. Winter can be a particularly stressful time for horses, but there a few simple things you can do to make them more comfortable.

When temperatures start to dip below freezing, you have to make sure your horses still have constant of hay per day in normal weather. The amount of feed required to meet requirements can increase quickly when the weather turns cold. In many cases the horse will not be able to eat enough hay to meet requirements, so owners will need to add concentrate to the program. Check your hay supplies now and make sure you have enough and that you have a place to store it out of the weather.

Take time to send in a feed or hay sample for testing, so you will know if your hay has adequate nutritional balance and quality.

It is a good idea to get a body condition score on your horses before it gets cold, so you can start making adjustments now if necessary.

Putting a blanket on your horse requires you to think about several things. The blanket needs to be waterproof, in good condition; and you need to make sure it fits the horse. An ill-fitting blanket can do more harm than good. If your horse is outside, has a good coat of hair and access to adequate shelter, you probably do not need to use a blanket. If you do use one, check it often. If the blanket gets wet, you need to quickly change it.

For more information on feed or hay testing and caring for your horses during cold weather, contact the Whitley County Cooperative Extension Service at 549-1430; visit the office located in Cumberland Regional Mall, Suite 34, Williamsburg; or e-mail DL_CES_WHITLEY@EMAIL.UKY.EDU.

The Christmas child

■ By Jason Abston
for the News Journal

Luke 2: 8-17, “And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.”

During this time each year, these few verses are read over and over to describe the birth of Jesus and the first Christmas. Although, Christmas has become very commercialized today, it is important to remember that this was a new beginning for mankind. God had sent the best Christmas present ever - a savior to a lost and dying world.

The shepherds in the field were obviously excited at the news of our Savior’s birth, and laid aside their worldly toil to run to see Him. They had certainly heard all of the stories telling of His birth that are written in the Old Testament.

Like each of us, the shepherds certainly had a past they weren’t proud of. Each of us has done things we regret and felt sorrow for. The shepherds didn’t care about what was in their past, but simply ran to find the Savior who could set them free from their sins.

There is a valuable lesson in this for each of us. It is impossible to change what we have done in the past; some individuals still live dealing with mistakes they have made.

We should remember what the Apostle Paul has said, “Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.”

As someone who had at one time persecuted Christians and even took part in the killing of Steven, Paul knew what it was to have a difficult past to deal with. The past could have been a heavy burden for him to bear.

What we have done in the past shouldn’t keep us from calling out to Jesus. Just the opposite is true; because of what we have done we should call to Him. That is why He came to this earth on that first Christmas. “This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief,” 1st Timothy 1:15.

Corbin High donates more than 200 teddy bears to Corbin Police Department

The Corbin High School FCCLA donated more than 200 teddy bears to the Corbin Police Department.

The police department will use the bears to give to children in traumatic situations such as a car wreck or house fire.

The bears are meant to help alleviate some of the trauma the children may experience from negative situations.

FCCLA held a teddy bear drive at Corbin High School to collect the bears.

Mr. Kinsel's class brought in the most bears at 98.

All the bears were washed and sanitized to be given out to the children.

Corbin Intermediate participates in "Pay It Forward" Project

Corbin Intermediate sixth grade students are participating in a Pay It Forward Project where they will sell products/crafts they have made out of recycled materials to the public. The items were all created by students in class and will be available for sale Thursday, December 17th from 5 p.m. - 6:15 p.m. at Corbin Intermediate School during their Museum Night. The students will have approximately 54 booths at the event and all proceeds will be donated to local charities.

"The students have created a wide variety of crafts/products to sell. Among them you can find bracelets, birdhouses, organizers, Nebula in a Bottle, wind chimes, piggy banks, guitars, bowling pin sets, picture frames, variety of Christmas ornaments/decorations, and much more,"

Corbin Intermediate Teacher Nerissa Calhoun said.

The students have been working on the project for the past month. As part of the project, the students researched products and crafts created from recycled materials, conducted market research surveys to fifth grade students to choose their final products and set pricing, listed and requested recycled materials needed, and made the products themselves. The student groups also researched local charities and non-profit organizations, each group then chose an organization to donate their profits. The organizations chosen include Christian Appalachian Project (CAP), Children's Literacy, Appalachian Wildlife Foundation, Breast Cancer GIV Foundation, Disabled American Veterans, American Red Cross, Habitat for Humanity, Christian Shelter for the Homeless, Central Baptist Hospital, Central Baptist Hospital, Grace on the Hill Food Pantry, Knox-Whitley Animal Shelter, and St. Jude's.

The project will replace the annual Entrepreneurship Fair previously held by sixth grade students at Corbin Intermediate. The Entrepreneurship Fair consisted of students developing games and products for fifth grade students who visited the fair with play money. Corbin Intermediate School experienced success in the past with the fair but wanted to transform the event into a project with more authentic, real-world applications.

"With this project the students are focused more on the aspect of social entrepreneurship designed to benefit our community. We also wanted the students to engage in a more philanthropic endeavor which would benefit a worthy organization," Calhoun said.

All sixth grade students are participating in the project as part of a social studies unit involving principles of economics along with investigating better uses of recycled materials. The Pay It Forward Project is one of many projects-based learning endeavors taking place at the school.

OF CHRISTMAS

Shhhhhhh.....

We've got a secret!

AND IF YOU GUESS WHAT IT IS
YOU CAN WIN $500

The News Journal SECRET PHRASE GAME!

We've got a secret phrase in mind! If you guess what the secret phrase is you can win $500. It could be an old saying, a famous quote or something we just made up. Can you figure out what it is? The rules are simple. Every week, for the twelve weeks leading to Christmas, beginning on October 7th, one word of the secret phrase will be published somewhere in the News Journal. Find it. Write it down. The words won't be in any particular order, so you'll have to put them all together at the end to get the phrase in the correct order. When the final word has been published, the first reader to call 606.528.9767 at 11 am on Dec. 23rd and give us the proper phrase will win $500! No calls will be accepted until 11 am, Dec. 23rd. You must be a legal US resident & 18 or older to play.

EXAMPLE ONLY:
This is what the secret word will look like in the paper.

Colonels survive Wildcats in Bowman Classic finale

CLASSIC CHAMPS: The Whitley County Colonels pose with their championship trophy after defeating Lynn Camp Saturday evening in overtime to take the top spot in this year's Bowman Memorial Classic. The Colonels also defeated Owsley County and Harlan during the course of the three-day classic, improving their record to 4-2 ahead of Tuesday's game with North Laurel.

Both the Whitley County Colonels and the Lynn Camp Wildcats came into the championship game of the 2015 Bowman Memorial Classic Saturday night playing some of their best ball of the season so far. The Colonels were hungry to pick up a big win over a worthy opponent and prove that they belong to be included in the conversation about who are the top teams in the 13th Region. The Cats wanted the same, and they had the added motivation of defending their home court in their own annual tournament.

What resulted was a battle that took both teams to the limit, and after one overtime period the Colonels were able to walk away victorious with a 64-61 win.

"I thought we had to come back from a lot of adversity," said Whitley County Head Coach Jerry Overbey after the championship game. "I don't think every call went our way, but the kids fought hard and came away with the win. I was proud of them for that. Lynn Camp is a much-improved team from last year. Dinky [Phipps] has done a heck of a job with them, and they'll be a team to watch out for in the future."

Sophomore Colonel Corey Johnson had a game-high 18 point for the Colonels in the win over Lynn Camp, followed by Casey Crisologo with 15, and Adam Petrey with 14.

Whitley also picked up wins over Owsley County and Harlan in the Bowman Classic, improving their season record to 4-2 ahead of Tuesday's home matchup against North Laurel.

The loss to the Colonels was the first of the season for Coach Phipps' Wildcats, giving them an overall record of 5-1 before Tuesday night's contest with visiting Thomas Walker, VA.

When asked to give his thoughts after the thrilling finale of this year's Bowman Classic, Phipps said, "I knew that Whitley County was a very good ball team coming into the game

The Knox Central Lady Panthers ended up coming out on top of this year's girls Bowman Memorial Classic at Lynn Camp High School, but the Whitley County Lady Colonels were able to make a strong showing as well.

Whitley started things off with a 67-58 victory over the host Lady Cats last Thursday evening, and followed that up with two solid performances on Saturday. In their first game of the day they fell short against a very talented Knox Central team, losing by a final score of 60-43. A couple of hours later they bounced back with a 66-47 win over 50th District rival Williamsburg, improving them to 5-1 on the year.

After the conclusion of the classic, Lady Colonels Head Coach David Estes said that the games highlighted some areas that he feels like the team needs to work on moving forward. "We're a work in progress," he said. "We have played nicely at times this year, but then at times we have shown that we have a long way to go."

The Whitley girls will be back on their home court this Thursday, December 17, as they host the Garrard County Lady Lions. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

TUESDAY NIGHT HIGHLIGHTS

Corbin, Whitley both fall to Laurel Co teams by two-point margins

HEARTBREAKER: Andrew Taylor and the Corbin Redhounds traveled to London Tuesday for a district showdown with the South Laurel Cardinals. The Hounds lost a close one, 43-41.

Tuesday was a night for nail biters as both the Corbin Redhounds and the Whitley County Colonels boys basketball teams fell to opponents from Laurel County, each game decided by margins of just two points.

The Hounds were on the road, squaring off with 50th District foe South Laurel. Corbin came into this contest as the underdogs, but they quickly showed that they should not be taken lightly, going up 11-4 at the end of the first quarter.

Things went back and forth leading up to halftime, but a free throw by senior Cardinal Braden Miller with only seconds remaining in the second quarter left things all knotted up at 21-21 when the horn sounded.

South was able to pull away a little bit in the third, taking a 34-26 lead with them into the evening's final quarter of play. The score would be tied on three occasions from there, the last tie coming after an Andrew Taylor two-point shot that made it 41-41 with only 20 seconds left on the clock.

Junior Jared Grubb hit two free throws a few seconds later, however, which gave the Cards the 43-41 lead. A last second attempt at a bucket from Taylor failed, and Corbin went on to fall to 1-3 on the year. With the win, South improves to 4-2.

In Williamsburg, the Whitley County Colonels were hosting the other team from London - the North Laurel Jaguars. This game had no district seeding implications, but it was still just as hotly contested.

The Colonels came in on a bit of a hot streak after winning three straight games last week to become champions of this year's Bowman Memorial Classic, and the Jags were looking to get back on track after suffering a defeat at the hands of crosstown rival South Laurel in their last outing.

In the end, it was North Laurel who was able to squeak by with the 66-64 victory, improving to 4-1 on the year. With the loss, Whitley falls to 4-3.

Also Tuesday, the Lynn Camp Wildcats improved their season record to 6-1 with a 79-55 win over visiting Thomas Walker, VA.

Fans appreciate history, tradition during holiday tournament time

When I first started working as the sports editor of the News Journal in the winter of 2013, high school basketball season was just about to get underway. It was a tough time to come into this job, and by the end of that first whirlwind season I felt like I had been put through the wringer.

I had a little better grasp on things last year, but it seemed to be even more crazy because of

As for the Lady Yellow Jackets, despite losing all three games of the classic, Head Coach Amanda Vermillion said that she still felt like it was a positive experience for her team.

"There were a lot of positives," Vermillion said when asked to sum up the overall experience. "We did a lot of things right, but we still have a lot of work to do. We have to continue to practice and get better."

Williamsburg played their first game of the classic last Friday, losing to Knox Central 70-53. They played Pineville very close Saturday afternoon, falling by just four points, 42-38. The loss to Whitley County later in the day Saturday dropped them to 1-6 on the year.

The Lady Jackets will be back in action this Thursday, December 17, at Scott, TN. Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

CHS BOWLING SENIOR NATHAN GENTRY

Corbin High School's Rolling Redhounds bowling team has enjoyed a lot of success so far this season. The girls team was undefeated at 10-0 going into Tuesday night's match with Madison Central, and the boys team stood at 9-1.

Providing veteran leadership for both squads this season is lone senior Nathan Gentry. Currently in his second year with the CHS bowling team, the 18-year-old Gentry said in a recent interview that his sister was the one that led him to compete as a Rolling Redhound. "She was a member of the school team for three years," he explained. "She invited me to join the team and I just thought it was a lot of fun."

Gentry said that competing as a high school bowler requires a lot of hard work, but he added that it is also a great feeling for him personally to be a leader for the Hounds.

As for the remainder of this season, Gentry said that he hopes the CHS bowlers will continue their winning ways, and hopefully send several competitors to the KHSAA state championships.

After high school, Gentry said that he would like to continue bowling while he studies to become a teacher at Eastern Kentucky University.

In addition to teaching one day, he said that he would also like to coach bowling.

CHS bowlers still rolling as season nears its end

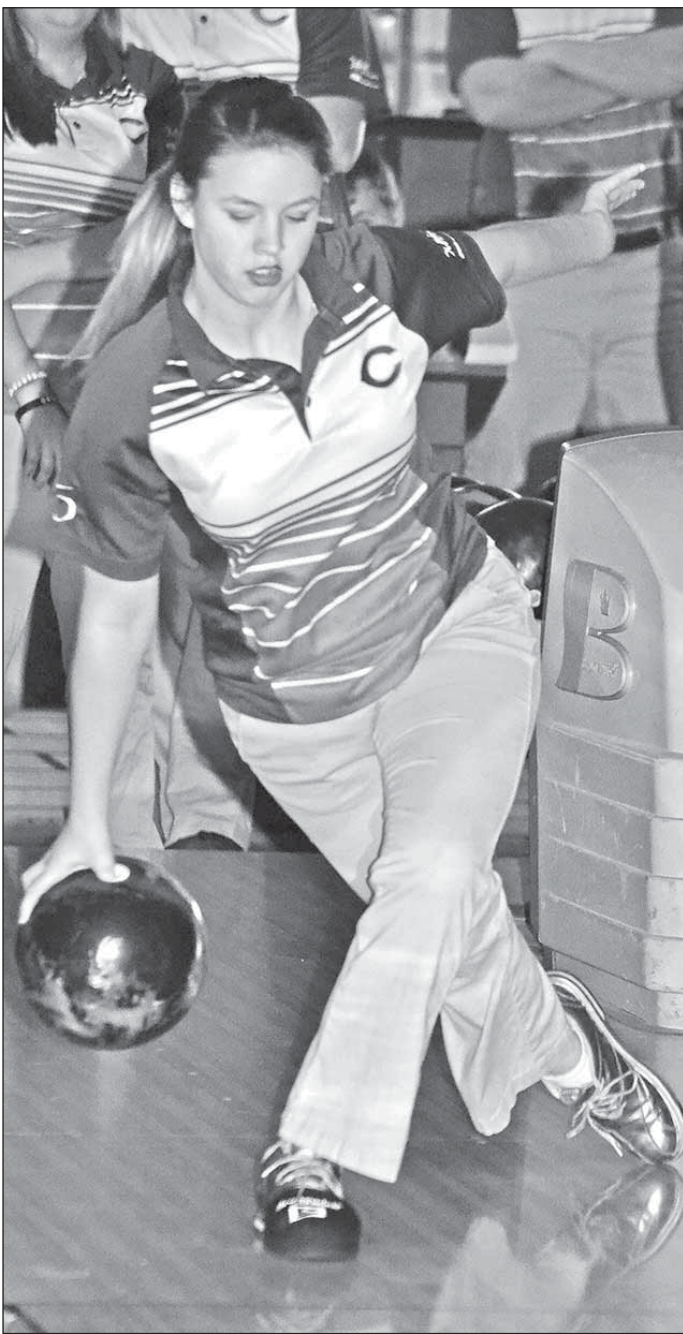

After defeating Whitley County over the weekend, the girls bowling team at Corbin High School entered Tuesday night's home match against Madison Central with an undefeated record of 10-0.

Members of the 2015-16 girls bowling team are: Allison Bricker, Megan Campbell, Tori Ellison, Destiny Hickey, Taylor Petrey, Josie Philpot, Emily Pridemore, Sarah Sawyers, Lauren Shackleford, Julia Shepherd, Mikayla Spencer, Katelyn Smith, Brooke Stewart, Madison Sutton and Heaven Torres.

The boys team also defeated Whitley County, improving their overall season record to 9-1 ahead of Tuesday's match. Boys team members are: Patrick Harmon, Ryan Felts, Zach Carter, Kevin Allen, Devin Thornsberry, Logan Price, Dade Geier, Chase Couch, Ryan Shackleford, Josh White, Nathan Gentry, Paxton Marion, Sam Belew and Anthony Risner.

Next up for the CHS Rolling Redhounds will be another contest against Madison Central, this time at the Galaxy Bowling Center in Richmond. That match is scheduled to take place on Tuesday, January 5 at 6:00 p.m.

ROLLIN REDHOUNDS: Top left, Kevin Allen looks to bowl a strike for the Corbin boys bowling team. The boys came into a Tuesday night match against Madison Central with an overall season record of 9-1 after defeating Whitley County on Sunday.

Left, Katelyn Smith and the CHS girls bowling team moved to 10-0 after defeating Whitley County Sunday. They are hoping to finish out the regular season with an unblemished record. Above, sophomore Josie Philpot was the only Corbin bowler to make an appearance at the KHSAA state championships last year. She is on track to repeat that feat again this winter. # KY Afield: Simplify holiday shopping for the outdoors enthusiast on your list

■ Courtesy of the Kentucky Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Choosing the perfect gift for a hunter or angler on your holiday shopping list can be a daunting and confusing task.

Let the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources’ website take the guesswork out of the process. Visitors to fw.ky.gov will find a variety of gift ideas, any one of which will be a hit with the recipient.

Among the most popular and practical items every year is the Kentucky Afield outdoor calendar.

The 2016 calendar includes hunting season dates, monthly stocking schedules for Fishing in Neighborhoods (FINS) program lakes, helpful outdoors tips and stunning photography. A photo of a lone American black duck surrounded by mallard ducks taken by John Brunjes, migratory bird coordinator with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife, graces the cover of the 2016 calendar. The centerfold is a reproduction of artist Rick Hill’s popular “Kentucky Fish” species poster.

While the deadline has passed to receive the 2016 calendar with the price of a new subscription to Kentucky Afield magazine, individual copies of the calendar may be purchased on the department’s website for $7.50 each while supplies last. Orders placed by Dec. 17 should arrive in time for Christmas.

Gift cards and gift certificates are always appreciated. A Kentucky Fish and Wildlife online gift certificate, redeemable for up to five years from the date of purchase, may be used to buy licenses and permits, passes to Otter Creek Outdoor Recreation Area, a one- or two-year Kentucky Afield magazine subscription or even registration fees for summer conservation camp.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife operates three such camps: Camp John Currie at Kentucky Lake, Camp Earl Wallace at Lake Cumberland and Camp Robert C. Webb at Grayson Lake.

The camps annually draw nearly 5,000 children who have completed Grades Four through Six and remain popular for a variety of reasons. Campers are provided opportunities to learn fishing, boating, archery, swimming, firearms safety and other skills that they will retain and can practice for years to come.

“Conservation camp offers a child a chance to really learn a lot about themselves,” said Laura Burford, assistant director of Kentucky Fish and Wildlife’s Information and Education Division. “They learn about independence and making their own decisions, making their own choices. They grow up a lot. It may be the first time they get to try a lot of things without mom or dad being around. That lends itself to a lot of confidence boosting. It’s a time for them to make new friends and learn new things.”

Online registration opens in early January. The $225 registration fee includes all lodging, meals, transportation, camper insurance as well as a Junior Sportsman’s license. The license alone is a $30 value and includes a junior hunting license, two junior deer permits and two junior turkey permits.

Similarly, the resident Sportsman’s license for adults includes most of the permits an avid hunter and angler needs during a full license year. It represents a $55 savings over buying the included licenses and permits individually. The new license year starts March 1, 2016. If you’re buying a license as a gift you will need the birth date and social security number of the person who will be receiving it.

For those who want to share the gift of the outdoors, sponsoring a camper through the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation is a great way to do it. Letters from children wishing to attend conservation camp but who do not have the means are posted on the foundation’s website at kentuckywildlife.com. Donors may sponsor a camper for any amount.

“If you want to give $5, $10 or give a full ride, you can do that,” Burford said.

The Salato Wildlife Education Center can inspire wonder and interest in the outdoors in young and old. The center features several indoor and outdoor exhibits, hiking trails and displays featuring live animals such as a black bear, an eagle, bobcats, elk, deer, bison, snakes, frogs, turtles and fish. The center is closed for the season and will reopen March 1, 2016. Annual memberships range from $20 to $50 and are available by calling Kentucky Fish and Wildlife at 1-800-858-1549.

And, finally, the Kentucky Afield store offers a variety of merchandise for fans of the popular television show and magazine. It includes hats in blaze orange, camouflage or khaki bearing the Kentucky Afield logo. There are Kentucky Afield polo shirts for men and women. Also offered are the “Best of Kentucky Afield Fishing” and “Kentucky Afield Deer Processing” DVDs. Past episodes of the television show may also be purchased through the online store. Orders should be placed by Dec. 17 for Christmas delivery.

Outside of the options offered by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife, you can’t go wrong with some basic items. A compact LED flashlight or headlamp. Quality rain gear. A base layer set or socks made of synthetic material or merino wool. A pair of insulated camouflage gloves. Game calls. A multi-tool. A dry bag for paddling.

Any one of these ideas is bound to please the outdoors enthusiast on your holiday shopping list. Not only will they appreciate the gift itself, but also that you recognized their passion for enjoying the outdoors.

WCHS wrestlers compete at Johnson Central, host home meet Monday evening

BACK ON THE MAT: Whitley County’s wrestling team performed well this past weekend at Johnson Central. The team went 2-1 in the team portion of the tournament. Six wrestlers from Whitley County qualified for the the individual tournament.

At 106 Jaime Stephens placed 2nd, 113 Jayden Watson placed 3rd, 120 Michael Stephens placed 3rd, 132 Payton Watson placed 3rd, 195 River Lawson placed 2nd, and 220 Matt Copeland placed 3rd.

On Monday, the Whitley wrestlers hosted a meet at home against Madison Southern and McCreary Central. The Colonels defeated Southern 54-30, and they went over McCreary 42-36. The team record is now 9-5 on the season, and they will be back in action at a Wayne County tournament on December 28.

Patriots Upset #1 Pikeville on the Road; Snap UPike’s 48-Game Home Win Streak

■ From UC Multimedia/ Athletic Services for The News Journal

The University of the Cumberlands Men’s Basketball team would wrap up their first semester conference schedule on Thursday night, Dec 10, as they traveled to Pikeville, Kentucky to take on the NAIA #1 team in the country, the Bears of the University of Pikeville.

UC would have a daunting task ahead of them as UPike had won 48 straight home contests dating back to January 19, 2013.

The Patriots’ defensive effort along with a stellar shooting night would propel them to a 78-72 victory over the Bears, moving them to 7-3 on the season and 1-1 in Mid-South Conference play.

UC would start off slow, falling behind 27-17 in the 1st half. The Patriots would then buckle down defensively and get hot on the offensive side of the ball, ending the half on a 27-9 run to take a 44-36 lead at the break.

UC would continue to beat and bang with the Bears up and down the floor, but it was the solid bench play of the Patriots that would contribute 47 points on the night to give them the 6 point victory.

BY THE NUMBERS

D’Lando Carter would explode offensively for UC going 13-17 from the field off the bench for 30 points, 3 assists, and 2 rebounds.

Xavier Owens pitched in 15 points and 5 rebounds in the win.

Temjae Singleton also added 13 points and 6 rebounds off the bench.

UC shot an impressive 56.1% from the field on the night (63.3% in the 1st half) while forcing 14 turnovers, scoring 15 points off those mishaps.

The Patriots scored 38 points in the paint in the victory.

UPike was led by K.K. Simmons with 22 points and 4 rebounds.

Patriots Thrive at West Virginia Tech Classic

The Patriots team traveled to Montgomery, West Virginia over the weekend to compete in the West Virginia Tech Baisi Classic.

The Patriots would take on Washington Adventist University on Saturday before taking on host school West Virginia Institute of Technology on Sunday. UC would battle and come away with two big victories on the weekend, extending their winning streak to 6.

The Patriots first matchup of the classic would come against Washington Adventist University, the first matchup ever between the two teams. UC held the lead the entire game having an 8 point lead at the half 30-22. The matchup ended in a huge 21 point margin victory in favor of UC, 76-55.

BY THE NUMBERS

Versus Washington Adventist University

D’Lando Carter led the way for the Patriots scoring 14 points, while shooting 100% from both the 3-point and free-throw line.

Taylor Gover and Tre Boutlier both chipped in 11 points, while Gover added 6 assists.

Temjae Singleton and Michael Dow added 10 points each. Singleton had the only double-double of the day for the Patriots, totaling 10 boards.

Elliot Meredith led the way for Washington Adventist University with 16 points.

Moving on to the next day of the classic, the Patriots would match-up against the Golden Bears of WV Tech, which brought about a much closer game.

While the Patriots were up by 12 points at the half 42-30, UC would cling to a 77-74 victory, extending their winning streak yet again.

BY THE NUMBERS

Versus West Virginia Institute of Technology

D’Lando Carter was the leading point scorer again for the Patriots totaling an impressive 19-points.

Tre Boutlier contributed with 13 points and 13 rebounds, achieving a double-double.

Xavier Owens had 14 points, 4 rebounds, and 3 assists.

Temjae Singleton totaled 11 points and 7 rebounds.

Paul Stone led the way for the Golden Bears with 27 points along with 11 rebounds.

UP NEXT

The University of the Cumberlands Patriots will be back in action on Friday, December 18, when they will take on Wilberforce University in the Dalton State Classic in Dalton, GA. Tipoff is set for 6 pm.

what the Williamsburg Yellow Jackets were able to do – winning All “A” and 13th Region championships en route to an appearance in the Sweet 16 tournament at Rupp Arena.

Now I am beginning my third winter season as sports editor, and I must say, I am having the most fun with the job since I took over back in 2013. This is a really enjoyable time of year, with lots going on to get excited about.

Not only are we nearing the Christmas and New Year holidays, but we are also smack dab in the middle of basketball classic season. There are so many tournaments happening this time of year that it can be hard to keep up with all of them, but they make for great traditions that sports fans can enjoy each year as the weather starts to turn cold.

I went last week to the annual Bobby Keith Classic at Clay County High School to watch the Corbin Redhounds play against coach Billy Hicks and the Scott County Cardinals. It was really cool seeing Hicks, who of course is a legend here in Corbin, as well as across the entire state, interacting with his former star player and current coach of the Hounds, Tony Pietrowski, before tipoff. After the game, Coach Keith, who is revered in Manchester for leading the Tigers to a state championship in 1987, presented both coaches Hicks and Pietrowski with commemorative basketballs. It was pretty cool to see all that history come together under one roof for a night of great basketball action.

The next day I was over at Lynn Camp High School, watching the girls’ and boys’ Bowman Memorial Classic Tournaments. Several local teams were involved in this year’s classic, which resulted in some great crowd participation, especially for the Whitley County versus Lynn Camp championship game in the boys’ bracket. I honestly don’t think I have ever heard it that loud inside that gym. It was an intense title game that required an overtime period to determine a winner, and I walked away feeling like the 2015 Bowman was a smashing success. Congrats to all who played a part in putting it on!

We’re just getting started with the holiday tourneys this year. The Lynn Camp Girls will be returning to the Food Pantry Classic in Campbellsville later this week, and early next week several coverage area teams will be participating in various different classics and tournaments.

The Corbin girls will be traveling to the Boyle County Invitational, the Whitley girls will be in the Taylor County Christmas Tournament, the Corbin boys will make an appearance in the Berea Invitational, and the Whitley boys are headed to Gatlinburg to play in the Smoky Mountain Classic.

All of this and much more will be coming our way soon, sports fans. Keep reading The News Journal for the latest scores and highlights!

This being the same real property conveyed to Buthel Veach and Gracie Angel Veach, by deed from Grant Angel, et al. on March 17, 1958 and recorded in Deed Book 194, Page 387 of the Whitley County Clerk's office records.

TERMS OF SALE

1. The above property is indivisible and shall be sold as a whole to produce the sum of money so ordered to be made.

2. On the date of sale, the purchaser shall either pay cash or, with surety on a bond approved by the Commissioner, may pay ten percent (10%) down with the balance in thirty (30) days with interest at 12% per annum from the date of sale until paid. Signatures of principal and surety on the bond shall have the effect of a Judgment. In the event the Plaintiff or its representative is the purchaser for a sum equal to or less than its judgment granted against the Defendants, then, and in that event, they shall only be required to pay costs and expenses of the sale and no payment shall be required by the purchaser prior to payment of the purchase price.

3. The risk of loss for the subject property shall pass to the purchaser on the date of sale. Possession of the premises shall pass to the purchaser upon payment of the purchase price and delivery of deed.

4. The purchaser shall be required to assume and pay all taxes or assessments upon the property for prior years shall be paid from the sale proceeds if properly claimed in writing and filed of record by the purchaser prior to payment of the purchase price.

5. The property shall be sold subject to the following:

a. Easements, restrictions and stipulations of record;

b. Assessments for public improvements levied against the following real estate;

c. Any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the following described real estate may disclose.

6. If the property does not bring two-thirds of its appraised value, a six (6) month right of redemption will exist pursuant to KRS 426.530 (revised July 15, 2014).

7. This property is sold subject to the right of redemption, if applicable, provided in 28 USCA Sec. 2410.

Dated this 1st day of December, 2015.

"Hoops shoot" to be held in CMS gym Sunday, January 3

Tri-County Elk's Club will host a "hoops shoot" free-throw contest on Sunday, January 3 inside the gymnasium at Corbin Middle School.

Registration will take place between 2:00 and 2:15 p.m.

Three age groups (8-9, 10-11, 12-13) will be included. Awards will be given to first and second place in each age group, boys and girls. An overall winner will also be named. Players will shoot 25 free throws in the contest. Hit the most to win!

All winners will advance to a district championship, possibly region, and hopefully a national championship to be held in Chicago in the spring of 2016.

For more information call Donnie Head at 606-524-0602.

Take control of your tobacco dependence & Quit Now Kentucky!

NEED A REASON TO QUIT?

DIABETES: Smoking makes diabetes harder to control. Smokers with diabetes have higher risks for serious complications. The health benefits for people with diabetes who stop smoking begin immediately. Diabetics who quit smoking have better control over their blood sugar levels.

CIRCULATORY: Your risk for a heart attack drops sharply just 1 year after you quit smoking. After 2 to 5 years, your chance of stroke could fall to about the same as a nonsmoker's. You will feel better and can be more active when cigarettes are gone from your life.

RESPIRATORY: Even after the age of 65, quitting tobacco can add years to your life. You will breathe better and feel better.

CHILDREN: Smoking harms reproduction and reduces a women's chance of getting pregnant. Pregnant women who smoke are more likely to have babies who die from sudden infant death syndrome, or SIDS.

CANCER: Smoking can start your body on a path toward cancer. Every cigarette increases the risk for cancer. Smoking can cause cancer almost anywhere in your body.
